Post-War Program

Army Reorganization

BY THE HON. KENNETH C. ROYALL
Secretary of the Army

IN an organization the size of the Army it is necessary to assign responsibilities, successively, down the line, and to insist that these responsibilities be met. The duties of all echelons must be clear and logical—and it is important that no position be assigned more responsibility than it can perform—or less responsibility than it should perform.

The new organization of the Department of the Army may well be epitomized—with a fair degree of accuracy—as half way between the so-called Somervell organization of World War II and the postwar organization which became effective in June, 1946, with the new organization having two added features, first, more civilian control over the business and financial side of the Department, and, second, more time for planning and for field contact by the Chief of Staff.

In World War II the Commanding General, Army Service Forces—who was General Somervell—controlled all the Technical Services, such as Ordnance and Quartermaster, and also controlled all administrative services like The Adjutant General and the Judge Advocate General. He also commanded, directly or indirectly, all Service Commands (now called Army Areas) and all domestic installations except combat training installations.

He had a large staff organization, including even personnel and training and fiscal—a staff organization which to a considerable extent duplicated the General Staff. The authority which the Commanding General, Army Service Forces, exercised, even in procurement and related matters, in actual practice largely bypassed the Chief of Staff and even the Under Secretary. On the other hand the postwar organization of 1946 tended to go to the other extreme and to put too much direct responsibility on the Chief of Staff.

Under the new reorganization, supervision of Army logistics and finance will be the responsibility of the Under Secretary or the Assistant Secretary. Normally it would be the Under Secretary, but for the past year foreign occupation problems—including Berlin—have been of such importance that they are now assigned to the Under Secretary, leaving logistics, etc., to the Assistant Secretary.

Perhaps I should define logistics, which is largely an Army term. It includes procurement of arms and other supplies, the

Air Force Establishes
Continental Command

To provide for Air Force command areas identical with those of the Army and to strengthen the Air National Guard and Air Reserve programs, General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, has ordered organization of a Continental Air Command headed by Lt. Gen. George H. Stratemeyer, USAF, with headquarters at Mitchel AFB, N. Y.

The new command will include all units and functions now assigned to the Air Defense Command and the Tactical Air Command, which will continue as operational headquarters.

Maj. Gen. Gordon P. Saville will become Commanding General of Air Defense Command. Maj. Gen. Robert M. Lee, now Deputy Commander of Tactical Air Command, will become its Commanding General.

Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, formerly Commanding General of the Tactical Air Command, last week was appointed special assistant to the Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, for civilian components in the first step of the Air Force's response to the Presidential order for strengthening civilian components.

Under the new organization the Continental Air Command will assume direct control over six regional Air Forces to which all units and stations presently assigned to the Air Defense Command and the Tactical Air Command will be transferred. Each of these Air Forces will be responsible for Air Force matters within the identical limits served by each of the six Departments of the Army areas so that the services may have closer coordination. The plan was drawn up by mutual agreement between the Department of the Air Force and the Department of the Army.

Each of the geographic Air Forces will also be responsible for all Air National Guard and Air Reserve training programs in their respective areas under the direction of the Continental Air Command. This is designed to provide closer supervision and support of Air Reserve and Air National Guard activities than previously has been possible. The geographic Air Forces would also be responsible for the formation and training of new units in the event of mobilization and for the administration of units and facilities assigned to their respective areas.

The 9th and 12th Air Forces, presently assigned to the Tactical Air Command, will become geographic Air Forces, together with the 1st, 4th, 10th and 14th Air Forces, presently assigned to the Air Defense Command. Headquarters of the 14th Air Force will be moved from Orlando, Fla., to Langley AFB, Va., and headquarters of the 12th Air Force will be moved from March AFB, Calif., to Brooks AFB, Tex. Headquarters of the 1st, 4th, 9th and 10th Air Forces will not be moved. No change in commanding generals of the six Air Forces is being made at this time.

Army and Air Warrants

Next week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL will carry the complete lists of new Army and Air Force warrant appointments.

It is expected that the Army list will contain approximately 3,200 names and that about 1,900 Air Force warrant officers will be appointed.

The lists will also report the specialties in which the warrants are being made.

Adm. Denfeld Stresses Subs

The problem of undersea warfare, both offensive and defensive, is "the priority item" in Navy planning, according to Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations.

"Our modern, high-speed submarines," the CNO said, "can operate with the fast carriers, cruisers and destroyers to much greater advantage" than could those of World War II. In any future war, he said, the Navy can "conceive" submarines being used as direction finders for guided missiles launched from carriers. The submarines will be "carefully spaced between launching area and the target, to act as direction finders for the missiles."

Anti-submarine measures are also being emphasized, Admiral Denfeld pointed out in an address this week before the Rotary Club of Wilmington, Del. "With each step forward in the offensive phase of undersea warfare there is a new problem for and eventually another step forward in our anti-submarine measures," he said.

At Argentia, Newfoundland, where the Navy's Second Task Fleet is participating in cold-weather operations, surface vessels were badly "defeated" last week by the submarines. On the face of it, the reports of the fleet's defeat seemed overwhelming. However, Admiral Denfeld revealed in his speech that advantages were "purposely given to the submarine force" participating in the exercise.

"The target group at Argentia," he said, "with the exception of a small laboratory force modernized and equipped only World War II anti-submarine devices." Proper evaluation cannot be made, he pointed out, until other tests can be made in which the target group is assigned "the advantages . . . given to the submarines."

Hinting at secret anti-submarine devices, the Chief of Naval Operations told his listeners that "of necessity and for your own protection, I will not enlarge upon" new hunter-killer techniques, "except to say that the newest anti-submarine devices proved their effectiveness at Argentia. And, at that," he continued, "sinking enemy submarines in ocean combat is only one aspect of anti-submarine warfare."

Exercises, such as the one at Argentia, are going on all the time, Admiral Denfeld said, "particularly in the field of anti-submarine warfare. Many are on a small scale, testing perhaps one new device, or perfecting but one new tactic. . .

Proposes Income Tax
Relief for Services

The National Military Establishment will press for extension of the $1,500 income tax exemption for military personnel as a stop-gap measure until Congress acts on forthcoming pay revisions.

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal reported intention to safeguard service personnel from pay cuts by restoration of the tax exemption—at least until new pay scales are adopted.

The proposal that the income tax exemption be continued is embodied in the 1949 legislative program of the NME, which will be submitted to the Bureau of Budget and White House on 29 Nov.

Secretary Forrestal told a press conference this week that the Commission on Service Pay has "just about completed" its long-awaited report.

A final meeting of Chairman Charles Hook, his associates, and the Armed Forces Secretaries was scheduled late this week. Following this session, the official report of the Commission was slated for early presentation to Mr. Forrestal.

But whether the report will be made public immediately, as has been the practice with Mr. Forrestal's committees on civilian components and civil defense, was in doubt late this week. Defense aides explain that because of the obvious Bureau of Budget ramifications of the pay report, its release to the public may be delayed.

Fiscal 1950 Budget

Work on the 1950 budget is nearly completed, Secretary Forrestal indicated, but he refused to say whether it would go above the President's limitation of $15,000,000,000. The President said a lifting of this limit could be made if world conditions so dictate.

NME Legislative Program

Mr. Forrestal said he would make some recommendations for changes in the structure of the NME, but he added that these modifications "will not be many or drastic."

What recommendations of the Gray Board will be submitted to Congress for action were not reported, but presumably proposals for the civilian components will be included in the over-all legislative program to be submitted late this month.

Some sources in the Army, Navy and Air Force maintained this week that Congress would be called upon to act on all major recommendations of the Gray Board—including the controversial proposal to Federalize the National Guard.

Smith Report

Mr. Forrestal said he has not yet received the Navy's recommendation that its official files concerning the altercation between Lt. Gen. Holland Smith, USMC, and Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith, USA, be made public. The Defense Secretary said he would take action when the papers reach his desk.

Unification Squabbles

Asked if he would investigate the "source of leakage" relating to a letter written by Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington to Ferdinand Eberstadt which charged that statements made by the manufacture of items in government arsenals, and also storage, transportation and distribution. It also embraces construction and operation of installations and facilities, the maintenance of equipment, as well as the disposition of surplus property. It includes the important fields of Research and Development and also future industrial planning.

Obviously, the supervision of these functions, as well as of fiscal and financial activities, will require us to keep in this secretarial position a man of wisdom and business ability—just as we have today in the person of either Mr. Draper or Mr. Gray.

As to the financial and related functions, the military officer that is supervised by the Under or Assistant Secretary is the Army Comptroller. The duties of the Army Comptroller will be somewhat similar to those of a comptroller in private industry. In addition to supervision of budget, disbursing, accounting and auditing, the Comptroller will supervise manpower ceiling control, and also management engineering. In other words, he will follow the translation of plans into terms of men, material, and money.

Another important change effected by the new plan occurs directly in the General Staff. Today too many people, from too many different Army agencies, are reporting to the Chief of Staff. He does not have sufficient time to plan for the Army and to act with the Joint Chiefs of Staff in considering the military problems of the National Military Establishment. Nor does he have enough time to go into the field and see actual operations.

In order to remedy this, we are now creating the office of Vice Chief of Staff. The Vice Chief will be the "alter ego" of the Chief of Staff—will act for him and relieve him of many duties. General J. L. Collins will hold this important position.

Under the Vice Chief of Staff will be two Deputy Chiefs of Staff. One of these is the Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Combat Operations who will be General Wedemeyer. This Deputy is responsible for integrating the Army's total program—legislative, budgetary, mobilization, plans, and war plans, matters which have formerly been supervised and directed by different groups. Combat planning as such is only one phase of this Deputy Chief's activities, but it is a most important phase.

The other Deputy is the Deputy for Administration, who will be General Haislip. He will have the duty of directing the execution and implementation of the Army's program, as developed by the Deputy for Plans and Combat Operations. The chief work of this Administrative Deputy will be supervision—top level supervision—of the day-to-day activities of the entire Army.

A short hand statement of the functions of the two Deputy Chiefs and of the Comptroller is that the Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Combat Operations concerns himself primarily with the future, the Deputy for Administration concerns himself with the present—the day-to-day operations of the Army. And the Comptroller looks to the past—studies and evaluates what has already been accomplished.

Related to the new Deputy set-up is the change by which the Technical Services operate under the Director of Logistics—with much of the staff work being done by the other parts of the General Staff, and not by an additional staff of the Director of Logistics. The Administrative Services operate in like manner under the Director of Personnel.

All these staff changes, we believe, tend to simplify our chain of command—to make more clear-cut the duties and responsibilities of the various agencies and divisions of the Army.

A principal objective of this plan is to provide an organization suitable for either peace or war—with a minimum of needed adaptation in case of war. In past years, it seems that we have had to make radical organizational changes every time war came upon us.

This should be avoided, if possible. For, the only real purpose of a peacetime Army is to be ready to fight—ready to fight promptly, if need be. And rapid expansion will doubtless be a most important consideration in any future conflict. It might well be the difference between victory and defeat.

There are one or two changes which I might mention briefly. The Judge Advocate General's Department, for instance, has been added to the Special Staff, giving the Army's justice department direct access to the Vice Chief of Staff, or if need be, to the Chief of Staff himself, and thus putting the Judge Advocate General on a parity with the Inspector General. This means that the investigation of any malpractices in the Army can now be carried to the highest level for immediate consideration.

Then, too, all information services of the Army, including public relations, will be under a single Chief of Information—and placed on the highest level of policy-making.

In making these changes we drew heavily on the lessons of history, going back over fifty years, to look at peacetime and wartime organizations and the relations between them. We also sought to evaluate in general the nature of future warfare, and what effect it might possibly have on the ultimate form of our organization. We considered the position of the Army in its relation to the National Military Establishment. Finally—and this is important—we studied the organization of leading businesses.

Under the Army reorganization we believe that our operations will continue uninterrupted and that we will eventually save personnel instead of adding it. Even initially, we are using only officers now in the Department—and without any promotions.

I believe that this reorganization will really mean greater efficiency and more economy in the conduct of Army affairs. Sometimes, a contrast is drawn between economy and efficiency, but they are, in large part, only different ways of stating the same thing, particularly in peacetime when funds are limited. Economy is merely getting more for less dollars—and efficiency is taking the dollars given us and getting more results from them.

In this new plan, the Army is seeking to improve—searching for new and better ways to handle the many different and changing types of problems which confront us. There must never be an end to the effort to improve the Army. If we remain static—if we are unresponsive to new ideas—then we invite misfortune for the nation as well as for the Army.

You'll get special attention from Army and Navy Journal advertisers—they cater to Service personnel.

Heads Military Surgeons

Rear Adm. Joel T. Boone, MC, USN, was elected president of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States at the organization's 55th annual convention in San Antonio last week.

He succeeds Brig. Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, MC, USA, presently Chief, Reorientation Branch, Civil Affairs Committee, Army General Staff.

Reelected as first vice president was Dr. Robert C. Cook of the Veterans Administration. Other officers are:

Second Vice President, Col. Wm. H. Triplett, MC, MD-NG.

Third Vice President, Rear Admiral Winchell McK. Craig, (MC) USNR.

Fourth Vice President, Med. Dir. James P. Leake, USPHS.

Fifth Vice President, Brig. Gen. J. I. Martin, MC, USA.

Air Service Sec., President, Maj. Gen. Malcolm C. Grow, USA.

Dental Section, President, Brig. Gen. L. C. Fairbank, USA-Ret.

Veterinary Sec., President, Brig. Gen. Raymond A. Kelsner, USA-Ret.

Administrative Sec. on Medical and Allied Professional Sciences, President, Maj. A. E. A. Hudson, MSC, USA.

Secretary and Editor, Col. James M. Phalen, USA-Ret.

Executive Secretary, Stuart E. Womel-dorph, DCL.

The casualty figures of both World Wars I and II "show a marked reversal" of the number of deaths caused by disease, Rear Adm. Clifford A. Swanson, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, told the meeting.

Admiral Swanson pointed out that twice as many men died of disease during the Civil War as were killed in battle or died of wounds. In World War I the ratio was reversed to some extent, Admiral Swanson said, but the biggest achievement came with World War II when less than 5,000 out of 75,000 deaths were credited to disease. "Of the four million men in the Navy and Marine Corps during a period of three years . . . only 19 died from either typhus, typhoid or dysentery."

"These figures," the Surgeon General said, "are of monumental significance and are ample testimony to the great advances made in preventive and military medicine in recent decades."

Admiral Swanson predicted that "in a future war large segments of the civilian population will be drawn directly into the sphere of military engagements," extending the sphere of the military surgeon beyond military establishments "to include a consideration of the health of the civilian population."

Maj. Frederick M. Vandel, MSC, Director of Personnel, Army Medical Center, and Maj. Monroe E. Freedman, MSC, Chief, Biochemical Section, Army Medical Department Research and Graduate School, spoke at the annual meeting of the National Association of Military Surgeons in San Antonio last week.

Other officers from the Army Medical Center who attended the sessions included Col. James B. Falk, Maj. Arthur E. Berger, Capt. Earl W. Brannon, Jr., and Capt. Andrew A. Windham.

Turbo-Jet Engines For B-35's

The Air Force is converting 10 of the B-35 type aircraft from reciprocating engines to turbo-jet engines. This modernization is now in progress at Hawthorne, Calif.

Aircraft Industry

Pointing out that the manufacture of planes for export helps to maintain the "vigorous industry required by National Security," Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, USAF-Ret., this week reported the results of a survey on export sales activity made by the Aircraft Industries Association, of which he is president.

The survey was undertaken because of a reported misunderstanding abroad about the size of the current military aircraft program and its possible effect on the export activities of American concerns. Commenting on such misunderstandings, General Echols said:

"Actually, there are numerous American manufacturers still in need of business. They have a large amount of idle capacity suitable for production of personal and transport planes and helicopters, the types in demand by foreign nations. These aircraft companies are endeavoring to obtain export business from all areas where such negotiations are at present approved by our government."

"Export sales of such planes help to maintain the vigorous industry required by National Security by keeping companies in a healthy condition which are unable to secure an adequate volume of military business. The importance of export markets can better be understood when it is realized that 25 per cent of the total volume of all civil types produced in 1947 by American concerns were sold abroad. The total exports of all aircraft and aircraft products amounted to 175 million dollars in 1947."

"Military production in 1948 (less than 2,500 units) and in 1949 will be at a rate amounting to only a fraction of the levels prevailing during the last war."

Sec. Forrestal's Discussion

Navy to Mr. Eberstadt's subcommittee of the Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization were a "challenge of the ability of the Air Force to accomplish its primary mission," Mr. Forrestal said he does intend to initiate such a probe.

He added that he has instructed all Services to clear with him any statement concerning another Service to be made before any committee.

Impressions from Europe

Just returned from a six-day European inspection trip, Secretary Forrestal said he had obtained five major impressions. These he described as follows:

(1) The evidences of unification increase the further one gets from Washington—almost in an inverse ratio. The Army, Navy and Air Force are giving an "outstanding example" in the Berlin Airlift.

(2) The Berlin Airlift has brought in a new era in air transportation. No one had realized the tremendous implications of this operation.

(3) The British are bearing up under hardships with "extraordinary spirit and patience."

(4) The Western Union is beginning to take form and shape.

(5) In Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Maj. Gen. Clarence Heubner, the country has outstanding representatives.

Standardization of Equipment

Joining Secretary Forrestal at the conference was C. D. Howe, Trade and Commerce Minister of Canada, who is in Washington, to discuss standardization of weapons. For the moment, aircraft are receiving top priority in this program, Mr. Howe reported.

Income Tax Deductions

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal said this week that remedial legislation will be urged, but this will not obviate the necessity for finance officers of the Army, Navy, Air Force, National Guard and Organized Reserve to begin the collection of income tax deductions with the first pay check in January.

There may be refunds later if Congress reestablishes the $1500 income tax exemption for officers and the total income tax exemption for enlisted personnel. Nonetheless, January paychecks will be smaller.

Preparing for the initiation of worldwide collection of income tax payments, the Services already have promulgated basic instruments to finance personnel. Forms are being distributed and final arrangements are being completed.

Ultimately, of course, military personnel will pay identical income tax on respective earnings for various ranks and duties, but there will be differences in the method of collection.

The Navy, for example, will not withhold income tax on such items as aide pay, arms qualification, aviation lump sum payments, aviation pay, back payments of all types, battle efficiency prizes, diving pay, lump sum payment for unused leave, medals, messman, reenlistment allowance, sea and foreign service duty and submarine pay.

The Army and Air Force, according to Circular 347 and AF Letter 173-18, will deduct income tax payments on all elements of pay, such as base and longevity pay, foreign service and sea duty, additional pay for flying, parachute, glider and diving duty, special $100 to medical officers (also to be deducted by the Navy) pay for badges, etc.

This means, obviously, that many individuals in the Navy will be required to pay the difference between what was deducted from his monthly pay—base pay and longevity—and the total income tax due at the end of the year. Most affected, says the Navy, will be those on sea and foreign service duty and those in flight status, who should file declarations of estimated income and make appropriate payments quarterly.

Before the end of 1948, all military personnel will be required to fill out the Withholding Exemption Certificate, which indicates the number of dependent exemptions claimed by the taxpayer.

Additionally, of course, every serviceman will be required to file an income tax statement at the end of 1949. Some will receive reimbursements for over deductions, but as indicated above many will be required to pay additional income tax for sums not deducted.

National Guard and Organized Reserve personnel have not had the $1500 or total exemption and many have paid income tax on military pay heretofore. However, now it is required that this tax be deducted from their pay in the same manner prescribed for those on active duty with the Army, Navy or Air Force.

With regard to the effect of the deductions on allotments, the Army explains: "The pay which may be allotted by military personnel must be reduced by the amount of tax that is withheld. Allotments that are currently in effect will be reviewed and if the total of allotments authorized is excessive, based on the foregoing, action will be taken to change such total to conform thereto."

Explore New Housing Plan

Army housing officials are drafting a basic lease form to be used in unprecedented negotiations by which private contractors will be permitted to construct quarters for enlisted and officer personnel on military reservations.

Under the proposed plan, the Army would lease to the contractor sites for the housing, for which the Army would be paid rent. Private capital will own the buildings. Normally, the land earmarked for such construction would be used by the Army for its own housing construction if adequate funds were available.

Cooperating with the Army in the housing program, which is expected to provide at least several thousand new housing units to meet critical shortages, is the Federal Housing Authority.

Army commanders have been instructed to discuss this matter with local F.H.A. officials and with contractors and officials of mortgage firms.

Service Tax Exemptions

The Navy Bureau of Personnel told officers and enlisted personnel that the following items are exempt from income tax:

- Rental and quarters allowances
- Subsistence and ration allowances
- Per diem allowances in lieu of subsistence
- Uniforms or allowances (cash clothing) therefor
- Six-months death gratuity
- Mustering-out pay
- Family allowances paid to dependents of enlisted personnel
- Personal cash allowances paid to fleet admirals, admirals and vice admirals.

OCD Report Studied

Top officials of the National Military Establishment this week were reviewing far-reaching proposals made by the Office of Civil Defense Planning under chairmanship of Russell J. Hopley, president of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company.

The OCD's report has been submitted to the three Services and to other interested Federal agencies for comment by Secretary Forrestal before he makes any recommendations for necessary Congressional action.

Secretary Forrestal noted that the report "does not concern itself with any military forces and does not address itself to the need of the states for trained and equipped armed forces to fulfill military missions and which might, when called upon, support local civil defense action."

"You will recall," Secretary Forrestal continued, "that the Gray Board Committee on Civilian Components recommended that the states have local units for internal security under their control in peace and war, properly trained and equipped for state missions, especially to fill the vacuum created under the present system by the call of the National Guard into Federal service."

Basing its recommendations on the pooled thought of specialists drawn from essential fields of participation in an overall program, the Hopley group proposed:

A National Office of Civil Defense, with a small staff, to furnish leadership and guidance in organizing and training the people for civil defense tasks.

Basic operational responsibility to be placed in states and communities, but with mutual assistance plans and mobile supporting facilities for aid in emergencies.

Maximum utilization of volunteers, existing agencies and organizations, and all available skills and experiences.

Well organized and trained units in communities through the United States, its territories and possessions, prepared and equipped to meet the problems of enemy attack, and to be ready against any weapon that an enemy may use.

Intensive planning to meet the particular hazards of atomic or any other modern weapons of warfare.

A peacetime organization which could be used in natural disasters even though it may never have to be used for war.

In his letter of transmittal to Secretary Forrestal, Mr. Hopley commented:

"It is the purpose of this report to recommend for adoption a permanent peacetime system of civil defense which will round out our defense structure and which, in the event of an emergency, can be quickly and easily expanded to meet the exigencies of a given situation."

"In the event of a future war, which might come to our shores, all of the people, all of the facilities and all of the skills and energies of the nation must be utilized to the fullest extent. To successfully carry out this program will require the cooperation of every man, woman, and child in this nation. It is on such principles that civil defense must be erected and it must be with such a requirement that its organization be perfected."

"We hope that the Civil Defense Organization will never need to operate for war, but we dare not gamble on that hope. We who have studied the problem feel a great need for prompt action in establishing such an organization. To be without it leaves us in a most vulnerable position."

Shift 22d Bomb Group

The Air Force's 22d Bombardment Group is flying to England to begin three months' temporary duty training with the Third Air Division. The 22d, based at Smoky Hill AFB, Salina, Kans., will replace the 2d Bombardment Group, which is returning to Davis-Monthan AFB, Tucson, Ariz.

Reserve Retired Pay

The Comptroller General was expected to deliver to the Services his decisions on eight questions concerning retired pay for Reservists either late this week or next week.

Personnel officials have been standing by with regulations concerning these payments awaiting the Comptroller General's rulings on questionable points, discussed in last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Unofficially, it is reported that one ruling will probably hold that applicants must be a member of a civilian component at the time application is made for retired pay. This would be a serious blow to personnel who have severed relations with such components after having completed 20 years' service.

Meantime, however, the Army has announced that members of civilian components who wish to apply for retirement with pay under the provisions of Public Law 810, and who are 60 years of age or approaching 60, may now secure application blanks from The Adjutant General.

A limited supply of forms, designated as NME 108, is available. Consequently, the Department of the Army will furnish them only to individuals who are 60 or more, or close to that age, and who are tentatively determined by The Adjutant General to be otherwise qualified for retirement benefits.

Forms are already being mailed to qualified persons who have previously applied. It is not necessary for applicants to submit official statements of service. The Adjutant General will verify service claimed from records on file.

Enlisted Career Exams

The career status of Army enlisted personnel gained new prominence this week as the first round of promotion examinations in the Food Service Career Field were administered simultaneously at 84 testing stations—one of them aboard an Army transport bound for the United States.

It is estimated that as many as 20,000 men may have taken the examinations.

As a result of the examinations, which embraced Grades 1 through 4, the Army will promote hundreds of cooks, bakers, meat cutters, mess stewards and food service technicians to higher grades before Christmas.

Some of the Food Service Career Field personnel will receive two promotions, the first for the one-time grade adjustment provided for in Circular 203, and the second for passing the examination for the next higher grade.

In an all-out world-wide effort to insure success of the initial Career Field examinations, the Army authorized qualified examination officers aboard the USAT Callan to administer tests to eligible personnel who left Trieste before the examinations were held on 16 to 19 Nov.

Only at Guadalcanal was there a delay in the examination. An examining team en route to that island was delayed because of the necessity for maintenance to their plane. Therefore, assured that the security of the examination was safe, Army officials in Washington authorized a sole exception for the world-wide mandatory examination schedule.

The Army said the Food Service examinations are the forerunners of similar examinations to be launched in the near future.

Speculation is that the next tests will be given in six combat fields, probably soon after the first of the year.

In addition to the shipboard tests and the Guadalcanal delay, the Army arranged for eligible troops at Teheran, Iran, to fly to Frankfurt, Germany, for the examinations. Throughout the world, the Army did everything possible to insure that the test would be a success and that personnel would not be handicapped because of present assignments.

Gen. Ryder Appointed

Appointment of Maj. Gen. Paul W. Ryder, Commander of the IX Corps in Japan, as a special assistant to the Army Chief of Staff for Civilian Components was announced yesterday by Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall. The appointment conforms to President Truman's 18 Oct. executive order in which he recommended that the Army Reserve and National Guard programs be accelerated.

Widen Army Commanders Powers

"Operation TACT," the project designed to lead to the transfer of many field installations from the control of the Chiefs of the technical services to the commander of the Army in whose area they are located, already is being judged a success.

"TACT" (Third Army Command Test) officially referred to as the "Territorial Command Test," was set up as a six months trial run to determine the best methods for administering all Army installations within a geographical Army Area by one agency—the Army Commander's headquarters. Although the test was only started on 1 Oct., it has advanced so far that announcements from Third Army Headquarters at Ft. McPherson, Ga., this week referred to it as "assured of success."

The project is a test of decentralization. Formerly an Army Commander has had complete control only of those installations concerned primarily with the housing, feeding and training of troops at Class I Installations; or the handling of military matters of direct concern to Army headquarters. "Class II Installations," or those concerned with the activities of the technical and administrative services, such as Quartermaster, Ordnance, Chemical, Medical Engineer and Signal Depots, arsenals, hospitals, and others, were under direct supervision of the Chief of the technical service concerned. The Army Commander was responsible for only certain supply or service functions at these installations, but had no command responsibility.

The mission of "Operation TACT" is "To determine how to place under the command of an Army Commander all units, activities and installations within the geographical limits of his territorial command, unless specifically exempted."

Approximately thirty additional installations and activities became a responsibility of the Third Army Commander on 1 Oct. involving an aggregate of some 20,000 military and civilian personnel. The additional personnel required at Army headquarters for these new responsibilities totals 15 military and 105 civilian. It is expected that this number can be decreased materially as the test proceeds. As an indication of what the added responsibilities mean, the annual funding program amounts to $210,000,000, as compared to $50,000,000 before the test began.

One of the benefits held to be derived from the test, in addition to the development of proper procedures for handling the many details involved, is that of providing valuable experience for staff officers at Field Army and Theater levels.

With the trial period only approximately twenty-five per cent completed, Third Army reports that "Operation TACT" gives every indication of accomplishing its final mission: "To produce a standing operation procedure for territorial command that can be applied to all of the Zone of the Interior Armies."

Army Selection Boards

The Army selection board considering officers for permanent promotion to the grade of lieutenant colonel, under presidency of Maj. Gen. Edwin Parker, The Provost Marshal General, is scheduled to conclude its meetings next week.

However, a report of the board's conclusions will not be made available until careful rechecking of names is completed. This is expected to take several weeks.

The Army is attempting to make selection results of this board and the major and captain boards public as soon as possible. It is hoped that this task may be completed by Christmas.

The promotions cannot become effective until 1 Jan. 1949.

Deliberations of the three boards is receiving anxious interest from officers eligible for consideration, since this marks the first time that a "pass over" will count officially as one of the two which make separation mandatory.

The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL will, of course, publish complete lists of officers selected for promotion when these are made available.

Army Personnel Plans

If recommendations of the Hook Commission are adopted by Congress, "an adequate monetary career in the Army would be established," Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, Director, Personnel and Administration Division, General Staff, USA, declared last week.

He made the statement in an address to cadets at the U. S. Military Academy, where the top personnel expert explained the Army's far-reaching program of improved human relations.

General Paul emphasized the necessity for increased attention to psychology in military curricula and praised instruction now being given at the Academy in this field.

He told the cadets how the Army has adopted many innovations in the field of human relations which have proved successful in industry. He said also that industry is following with great interest the Army's personnel program.

To cadets concerned about problems of pay and housing following graduation and their effect on marital plans, General Paul praised the patriotic service of members of the Hook Commission and expressed hope that Congress would enact into law its pay recommendations. He told also how the Army is pressing its housing program and also how private capital is being sought to construct quarters for military personnel.

Gen. Battley Reelected

Maj. Gen. Joseph F. Battley, USA-Ret., of Washington, D. C., was unanimously reelected president of the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association for a three-year term at the Association's 60th Annual Convention last week in Chicago.

UNITED STATES ARMY

Directors DA General Staff

Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall has announced the appointment of Maj. Gen. Harold R. Bull, USA, as Director of Organization and Training, General Staff, and of Maj. Gen. Ray T. Maddocks, USA, as Director of Plans and Operations, General Staff.

General Bull succeeds Lt. Gen. Charles P. Hall, USA, who has been ill for several months, and General Maddocks replaces Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, USA, who has been made Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Combat Operation.

In all probability both General Bull and General Maddocks will be recommended for promotion to lieutenant general, since that is the appropriate rank for directors of General Staff divisions.

Until such time as the service coat becomes available, one of the two wool OD jackets authorized for each soldier will be neatly fitted over the wool undershirt and wool shirt only, the Army has announced. Necessary alterations will be made.

Gen. Jeffe Aids Drive

Brig. Gen. E. F. Jeffe, USA-Col., will head a five-borough campaign in New York City next March in the American Red Cross 1949 fund-raising drive. General Jeffe is vice president in charge of sales of the Consolidated Edison Company.

Medical Resident Training

Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, Surgeon General of the Army, announced this week award of Regular Army commissions to 18 physicians preparatory to their entering the first year of military residency training in January. Commissions are in the grades of first lieutenant and captain.

This training, as part of the recently evolved Graduate Professional Training Program, is designed to offer all qualified applicants the opportunity to meet their requirements for certification by an American Specialty Board in the fields of their choice, contingent upon the needs of the Army.

Applications for the next phase of the training program—to begin next 1 July—are currently being received by the Office of The Surgeon General. No action will be taken on these until physicians applying have accepted commissions in the Regular Army.

Following are the names and addresses of the 18 newly-commissioned officers, who will enter the program in January:

Herbert M. Alston	Oliver Mays
J. H. Bickerton, Jr.	Clarence S. Miller
Ernest M. Bralley, Jr.	William A. Moore
James N. Brien, Jr.	Marvin E. Perkins
Samuel J. Camarata	T. F. Puckett, Jr.

Surgeon General's Meeting

Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, the Army Surgeon General, will hold the regular Surgeon General's Monthly Medical Meeting on 16 Dec., at 8 p.m. in Sternberg Auditorium, Army Medical Center.

Guest speakers will be Dr. Howard B. Lewis and Dr. J. W. Conn, both of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. Dr. Lewis will speak on "Protein Metabolism in Disease," and Dr. Conn's subject will be "Endocrinology and Metabolic Diseases."

Army Combat Insignia

Pending the printing of an amendment to Circular 202, Department of the Army, 1948, paragraph 10 is changed to read as follows:

"10. Changes in entitlement for combat insignia.

"a. Personnel entitled by virtue of assignment to one of the combat units listed in paragraph 9b or to units specifically designated as combat by the Department of the Army under paragraph 9c will retain their right to wear combat insignia of grade during any interim assignment in any pipeline status until permanently reassigned to units not designated as combat.

"b. Personnel whose last assignment (retroactive to last assignment prior to 1 August 1948 for personnel who were on one of the below listed types of duty at that time) entitled them to combat insignia are authorized to retain the same when permanently reassigned to the following types of duties for the duration of such tours of duty:

"(1) Recruiting duties.
"(2) Civilian component duties.
"(3) Duties in connection with instruction in basic training or in infantry, artillery, armored, engineer, signal or chemical branch training or in the infantry, artillery, armored, ground general, engineer, signal, or chemical schools.
"(4) Escort duties in connection with World War II dead repatriation program."

ILS-2 Contributes to Air Safety . . . Improves Operations

Today the landing of aircraft by means of the radio beam Instrument Landing System—known as the ILS—is a routine operation in important airports throughout the world. Accepted as standard equipment by national and international aviation bodies, the use of this system during the past winter has permitted many air operations which would not have been possible without it . . . operations which were carried out with safety . . . providing better service for the public, better income for the airlines. "Missed approaches"—the overshooting of the landing strip—are virtually eliminated with ILS. The I T & T version of this system—known as Federal's ILS-2—has been ordered and is being installed in many countries throughout the world. I T & T and its manufacturing associates have led in the development and manufacture of radio aids to navigation for more than 28 years.

Federal's ILS-2 combines Localizers, Glide Slope and Markers for an "on course" instrument landing.

Island Trading Company

The intriguing story of how a rise in the price of coconuts and copra transformed a "certain loss" into a handsome profit has been told by Vice Adm. Carleton H. Wright, USN-Ret.

The Admiral recounted how heavy demand for coconuts and copra permitted the Island Trading Company, a Government-owned organization under Navy direction, to pay off $500,000 in six months operation and to earn a dividend of $100,000 to be used for the benefit of natives in the Pacific under Naval jurisdiction.

Admiral Wright, as governor of the far-flung Japanese mandated islands, directed operations of the Trading Company. Its operations encompassed 117 islands with 50,000 natives scattered over several million square miles of the Pacific.

Three Flag Officers Shifted

Rear Admirals Joseph J. Clark, Dixwell Ketcham, and Harold M. Martin have been ordered to new duty stations, according to the Bureau of Naval Personnel.

Admiral Clark, on duty in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations, will become Commander of Carrier Division Four, relieving Rear Admiral Ralph E. Jennings. No new orders have been issued for Admiral Jennings.

Admiral Ketcham will assume command of Carrier Division Five, Pacific Fleet, relieving Admiral Martin. He is currently serving as Commander, Fleet Air, Alameda, Calif.

Admiral Martin will relieve Vice Admiral Felix B. Stump as Chief of Naval Air Technical Training at Memphis, Tennessee. Admiral Stump, recently promoted to three-star rank by President Truman, will command the Air Force, Atlantic Fleet.

Commo. Brady Appointed

Commo. Edmund E. Brady, jr., USN-Ret., has been appointed executive assistant to George G. Sharp, naval architect, 30 Church Street, New York City.

Active in the war-time shipbuilding program, Commodore Brady served as special advisor to the Minister of Transport for the Brazilian Merchant Marine Commission. He was retired 1 Oct.

Cook Book Task Committee

The Navy has called upon the food industry to help it provide better balanced and more palatable meals for Naval personnel.

Industry's cooperation was obtained when the Navy's Subsistence Division suggested to the Food Committee of the Navy Industrial Association a project for the revision of the Navy Cook Book. The NIA-Food Committee appointed a Cook Book Task Committee to handle the project and obtained the help of 14 leading firms in the food industry. Under the Chairmanship of Clark V. Kizzia of General Foods Corporation, the committee includes the following:

E. C. Baum, Continental Baking Company; Thomas R. Freer, General Mills, Inc.; H. B. Gorusch, National Biscuit Company; John O. Grom, The Borden Company; Helen C. Hamilton, Corn Products Refining Company; Reldum S. Kohler, the Quaker Oats Company; George Kraft, National Dairy Products Corporation; Everett H. Lee, Standard Brands, Incorporated; W. A. Lohman, Jr., General Mills, Inc.; Bradshaw Mintener, Pillsbury Mills, Inc.; John Moninger, American Meat Institute; M. B. Peterson, The Procter & Gamble Company; J. L. Stahl, Jr., Hershey Chocolate Corporation, and H. F. Williams, Wilson and Company.

Mr. Kizzia reported that the committee will provide a series of suggested recipes each six months and in the next three years will completely review all existing Navy recipes and submit their final recommendations for revision of the present cook book.

In commenting on the project, Commodore J. K. Richards, Executive Director of the Navy Industrial Association said, "People are inclined to think of the Navy Industrial Association in terms of a group of manufacturers of ships, planes, and guns. The project undertaken by the Association's Food Committee to assist the Navy Department in a complete revision of its Cook Book is truly indicative of the wide scope of service which the Association with Industry's help can render the Navy Department."

Canadians Train at Pearl

In a dispatch sent to Capt. J. C. Hibbard, RCN, Commanding officer of the Canadian Naval Training Squadron, that left Pearl Harbor 5 Nov., Rear Adm. Charles H. McMorris, USN, Commander Hawaiian Sea Frontier and Commandant Fourteenth Naval District, paid his respects to the officers and men of the Royal Canadian Navy.

The Canadian Training Squadron composed of the cruiser HMCS Ontario, the destroyers Athabaskan, Cayuga, and Crescent, and the frigate Antioconish, arrived at Pearl Harbor 19 Oct.

Dependents' Transportation

Based on the claim of the widow of Lt. Russell P. Cunningham, USN, to transportation at government expense under the Missing Persons Act of 7 March, 1942, 56 Stat. 146, the Comptroller General has ruled that transportation of dependents and household effects at government expense is not approvable "where the record fails to disclose that the person was killed 'as the result of military or naval operations.'"

The official digest of the decision, B-51701, follows:

"The provisions of section 9 of the Missing Persons Act, as amended, that administrative determinations as to death or finding of death, etc., shall be conclusive, do not include the power finally to determine disputed questions of law as to the construction to be placed upon the provision in section 12 of said act authorizing the transportation of dependents and household effects at Government expense of persons officially reported as injured, dead, missing, as the result of military or naval operations."

"An administrative determination that the circumstances surrounding the death of a person while on active duty are such as to bring it within the purview of section 12 of the Missing Persons Act, as amended, authorizing the transportation of dependents of persons officially reported as injured, dead, missing as the result of military or naval operations, may not be regarded as conclusive within the meaning of section 9 of said act so as to entitle the dependent of such a person to payment of transportation expenses where the record fails to disclose that the person was killed 'as the result of military or naval operations.'"

Visit Glenn L. Martin Plant

Visiting the Glenn L. Martin Airplane Factory in Baltimore, Md., on 6 Nov., were a group of seventy-five midshipmen members of the U. S. Naval Academy Mechanical Engineering Club.

The group was met by Comdr. W. T. Shields, USN, Bureau of Aeronautics Representative at the Glenn L. Martin Plant, who conducted them through the giant production line where they viewed the construction of patrol bombers and then through the flight test line where they watched the finished planes being put through their paces. Also included in the tour was a visit to the Experimental Section of the huge plant.

Lt. Comdr. Paul W. Gill, USN, of the Academy's Department of Marine Engineering, was the Officer-in-Charge of the group.

"Wholly Retired" Officer's Pay

According to Comptroller General blanket decision B-79178, "the one year's pay to be paid to an officer of the Regular Navy who, while serving in a higher rank under a temporary appointment, is wholly retired from service pursuant to section 1454, Revised Statutes, for disability not the result of any incident of the service, should be computed on the basis of the pay of his permanent rank, and not that of his temporary rank."

The official digest of the decision follows:

"The ruling in 24 Comp. Gen. 934—that the one year's pay to be paid to a Regular Navy officer who, while temporarily serving in a higher rank under authority of the act of 24 July 1941, is wholly retired from service under section 1454, Revised Statutes, for disability not the result of any incident of the service, should be computed on the basis of the pay of his permanent rank—is not affected by the provisions of section 316(j) of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, or the amendment of 21 February 1946, to section 10 of the act of 24 July 1941, authorizing the computation of retired pay of an officer on the basis of the pay of his temporary rank. 27 Comp. Gen. 152, distinguished."

"Kitty Hawk" Arrives in U. S.

The Kitty Hawk, famous aeroplane of the Wright brothers, arrival at Bayonne, N. J., on 19 Nov. aboard the Navy aircraft carrier USS Palau, completing the final sea leg of its journey from England to the National Museum in Wash., D. C.

The historic aircraft, which made its original flight at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, in 1903, was transferred to a Navy motor van with an honor guard of Bluejackets and Marines attending, and remained overnight at the Naval Shipyard, Brooklyn.

The van and a sedan carrying personnel responsible for safe movement of the plane will depart from the Naval Shipyard, Brooklyn on 20 Nov. for Washington, arriving there on the 21st.

Motorcycle police will escort the van through large cities. The officer in charge of the overland movement will be Lieutenant (jg) Arthur E. Graybill, USN, of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics.

Navy Reservist Draft Ruling

Navy reservists liable to draft for the Army may be accepted for 21 months active service in the Navy at any time prior to their actual induction in the Army, the Office of the Secretary of Defense announced this week.

It was pointed out, however, that this policy applies only to the calling to active duty of members of the reserve, and not to registrants who wish to enlist in the armed forces. The latter will not be accepted for enlistment after receiving notice to report for their preinduction physical examinations.

USNA '49 Officers Elected

Capt. Frank T. Ward, USN, Commandant of Midshipmen, has announced the outcome of the recent class elections for the Class of 1949.

President of the Class is Midshipman Ralph P. Williams, better known to all followers of the Navy football team as "Pistol Pete" Williams, Co-Captain of this season's Naval Academy football eleven.

Midshipman Lionel M. Noel is Vice-President of the Class of 1949. The Midshipman Brigade Commander, Midshipman John C. Barrow, was elected Secretary of the Class of 1949. The newly elected Treasurer is Midshipman Kenneth A. Bott.

U. S. COAST GUARD

A RECAPITULATION of progress made at the recent London International Conference on Safety of Life at Sea—first since 1929—was made last week by Rear Adm. H. C. Shephard, Chief, Office of Merchant Marine Safety, before the annual meeting of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers in New York City.

Admiral Shephard delivered the paper on behalf of Admiral J. F. Farley, Coast Guard Commandant, who headed the 35-man United States delegation to the conference.

The Coast Guard Merchant Marine Safety director said that the convention adopted by the International Conference is scheduled to come into force on 1 Jan. 1951, provided that at least 12 months before that date not less than 15 acceptances, including seven by countries each with not less than 1,000,000 gross tons of shipping, are recorded.

Officials at Headquarters reported this week increased interest in the forthcoming Academy examinations. A total of 143 applications have been received, compared with 48 at the same time last year.

The following is the text of Admiral Farley's Christmas message to Coast Guard personnel:

"To all of you in the Coast Guard, military and civilian, and to your families, I extend my sincere greetings and best wishes for a Merry Christmas and every happiness and success during the New Year.

"The Christmas message of 'on earth peace, good will toward men,' has a more than seasonal significance to the Coast Guard, for it is a precept adhered to throughout the year in the fulfillment of our humanitarian missions.

"May the personal satisfaction of a job well done be added to your joy during this holiday season, and may the New Year bring each of you continued health and happiness."

The U. S. Coast Guard has inaugurated a merchant marine industry training program to acquaint officers of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation with problems of operating American tanker, cargo and passenger fleets. Three officers already have been assigned for a one year tour of duty with the Texas Company, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and Standard Oil Company of California. During their year of service, the men will be paid by the Coast Guard, but will work as employees of the company to which they are assigned. Service will include office and shop work in the operations department, personnel, engineering, maintenance and repair problems. The training program is designed to "encourage greater co-operation between industry and the Coast Guard."

Officers assigned to these duties are Lt. Comdr. Holmes F. Crouch and Lts. William F. Rey and John F. Thompson.

A dream came true in 1903

45 years ago... on a barren, wind-swept beach at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, two young men were experimenting with an awkward-looking "flying machine." Their dream was to fly. Finally a telegram went out... Made two flights today against 40 mile wind. Inform press. Home for Christmas. Love. Orville. Their dream had come true. The Air Age was launched.

Today, aviation knows no limits. In doing honor to the Wright brothers on the 45th Anniversary of their Kitty Hawk flight, Curtiss-Wright also honors the ingenuity and productivity of American men and women of aviation... the far-seeing ones, the followers of Orville and Wilbur Wright and Glenn H. Curtiss, three great pioneers of heavier-than-air flying.

AF Manpower Group

Under command of Maj. Gen. Eugene Eubank, an Air Force Manpower Group has been established at Headquarters to insure the most effective and economical use of AF manpower resources.

The Manpower group has been given the following responsibilities:

Study the essentiality of specific functions and their relationship to over-all Air Force programs; review established Air Force policies on manpower utilization and recommend new policies or changes in existing policies where necessary or desirable; survey military and civilian personnel authorizations and utilization and recommend appropriate revisions; develop and maintain current yardsticks, methods, and procedures for use in the determination of manpower requirements; recommend bulk ceilings for military and civilian personnel in Headquarters USAF; and represent the Chief of Staff, USAF, on interdepartmental manpower board as established.

The commanding general of each major air command also will establish a manpower group and through this group will initiate continuing action to attain the most effective utilization of his personnel consistent with his assigned mission.

AF Personnel Directive

The Air Force has announced that all officers serving on active duty are authorized to enlist in the grade of master sergeant upon relief from active duty if they have a total of 10 years of active Army or Air Force service in commissioned status.

Duty with the Civilian Conservation Corps as an officer on extended active duty also counts, according to AF Letter 32-29.

Additionally, the Air Force said that all officers and warrant officers on active duty with the AF who served in an enlisted status in the Regular Army Air Corps prior to 10 Dec. 1941, will be enlisted in the grade of master sergeant upon relief from active duty, provided:

(1) Held the permanent or temporary non-commissioned officer grade of sergeant or higher in the Air Corps or AAF at time of entry on active duty as officer, warrant officer, or flight officer, or

(2) Held the permanent or temporary non-commissioned officer grade of sergeant or higher in the Air Corps or AAF immediately prior to appointment as an aviation cadet, provided that the individual was commissioned as an officer or flight officer directly from aviation cadet status, or

(3) Held a technician's or specialist's rating convertible to the noncommissioned officer grade of sergeant or higher at time of entering on active duty as officer, warrant officer, or flight officer and were at that time serving with the AAF, or

(4) Held the rating of air mechanic, first or second class, at the time of entering on active duty as an officer, warrant officer, or flight officer.

AF Officer Strength

The Air Force now has 49,433 officers on active duty. With the recall of additional officers for duty with "Operations Vittle," this figure should exceed 50,000 before the first of the year.

Additionally, the Air Force has 1,241 warrant officers, this number to be doubled late this month with announcement of new warrant appointments.

U. S. AIR FORCE

Reassign Six Air Generals

Reassignment of six United States Air Force general officers was announced this week.

Brig. Gen. Edward W. Anderson, formerly chief of staff of the Technical Division of Air Training Command at Scott AFB, Belleville, Ill., has been assigned as chief of staff of the Third Air Division, with headquarters at London, England.

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Caldwell, formerly military attache and air attache at Buenos Aires, Argentina, will replace General Anderson at Scott AFB.

Brig. Gen. Ralph P. Swafford, special assistant to the Chief of Staff at Air Force headquarters, will become assistant chief of the Engineering Division at Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio.

Brig. Gen. Robert C. Oliver, commanding general of the 18th Fighter Wing at Clark AFB, Luzon, Philippine Islands, will become deputy commanding general of Tactical Air Command's Ninth Air Force at Greenville, S. C.

Brig. Gen. Glen C. Jamison, formerly chief of staff of Caribbean Air Command, Albrook Field, Canal Zone, has been assigned to Headquarters, Air Defense Command, Mitchel AFB, Hempstead, N. Y.

Brig. Gen. David W. Hutchison, assistant chief of staff for operations for Strategic Air Command, Offutt AFB, Omaha, Neb., will become commanding general of the 97th Bomb Wing at Biggs AFB, El Paso, Tex.

AF 2d Lt. Temp. Promotions

The Air Force has delegated authority to 14 major commanders to promote to the temporary rank of first lieutenant second lieutenants who have completed 18 months' service on extended active duty and who are recommended by their immediate commanding officers for higher rank.

Air Force Letter 36-7 says that consideration for promotion of second lieutenants completing 18 months' service is not automatic. Promotions will be given only to those who merit advancement, but may be accomplished without regard to vacancies.

Date of rank in the temporary grade will be the date of the promotion order.

Authorized to make the promotions are commanders of the following:

Air Defense Command
Air Materiel Command
Air Training Command
Military Air Transport Service
Air University
Strategic Air Command
Tactical Air Command
Alaskan Air Command
Pacific Air Command
Caribbean Air Command
Far East Air Forces
United States Air Forces in Europe
Headquarters Command, USAF

Air Judge Advocates

The Air Force has initiated a procurement program for additional officers with legal training to bolster its present strength of 144 Regular and 61 Reserve judge advocates on active duty.

This was reported to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week by Maj. Gen. Reginald C. Harmon, the first Judge Advocate General of the Air Force, who was sworn into office on 8 Sept.

Approximately 150 additional judge advocates are needed immediately, General Harmon said. Ultimately, the judge advocates of the Air Force may number 1½ per cent of the total officer strength.

Whether the AF judge advocates would be placed on a separate promotion list or whether they would continue to be integrated with all other Air Force officers for promotion purposes was not certain officially this week.

The Military Justice law passed by the 80th Congress provides for separate promotion lists for Army and Navy judge advocates.

General Harmon, a believer in a small and flexible overhead organization, has divided activities of his office into two basic divisions. Lt. Col. Stewart S. Maxey currently is chief aide to the AF Judge Advocate General on civil matters and Col. Herbert M. Kidner presently is filling a similar responsibility with regard to matters of military justice.

Executive officer to General Harmon is Maj. Arthur F. Hurley, who, like his commanding officer, has spent all of his service with the Army Air Corps, Army Air Force, and the Air Force.

General Harmon, who is 48 years old, is a graduate of the University of Illinois School of Law and was mayor of Urbana, Ill., from 1929 to 1933. He served as an officer in the Field Artillery Reserve from 1926 to 1933, when he transferred to the Judge Advocate General Reserve with which he served until 1939.

In 1940, General Harmon entered on active duty as assistant Judge Advocate of Air Materiel Command at Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio, and in July, 1945, was named Judge Advocate of that command. In 1947, he transferred from the Army's Judge Advocate General Department to the Air Force.

General Harmon said that in addition to expanding the number of officer judge advocates, the Air Force will utilize more than 100 enlisted men as legal assistants. These men will be afforded the opportunity to advance to warrant officer positions.

AF Aid Society

Only 55.4 per cent of Air Force personnel are supporting the work of the Air Force Aid Society, an official survey showed this week. The 1948 Membership Campaign resulted in collection of $253,788.53 of a $300,000 quota. Late returns are expected, however, to raise the receipts.

The Caribbean Air Command, which gave $18,131.80, raised 241.8 per cent of its $7,500 quota.

Smoky Hill Planes to England

Several B-29 Superforts, commanded by Lt. Col. Lloyd D. Chapman, took off 15 Nov. from Smoky Hill Air Force Base, Kans., bound for Lakenheath, England, where their crews will be in training on a temporary duty basis for a period of time. The 22d medium bomb group, of which the B-29s are a part, continued taking off for England the following two mornings until all the group's planes had made the journey to Lakenheath, according to Col. Leslie G. Mulzer, who planned the mission with Lt. Col. Payne (Pete) Jennings, 22d group commander.

A few of the B-29s flew to Lakenheath by way of Iceland, but the majority of the planes stopped over at Kindley Air Force Base, Bermuda. In addition to Colonel Chapman, commanders of the squadrons participating in the mission are Lt. Col. John Grable, Jr., and Maj. Edward M. Nichols, Jr.

This is the second time within a month that a B-29 group has gone to England from Smoky Hill—on 17, 18 and 19 Oct. the 301st group, under Lt. Col. Frank W. Ellis, flew to Scampton, England, about 100 air miles from Lakenheath.

Both the 301st and 22d groups will eventually return to Smoky Hill Air Force Base. In the meantime, there will be nearly 3,000 persons on duty at the fields and around 800 basic airmen from Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, are arriving there for training this winter. Smoky Hill is a 15th Air Force field.

5 Bombers To Be Ditched

Five Air Force radio-controlled "drone" B-17s, the Flying Fortress of World War II, will be crashlanded in the waters of Choctawhatchee Bay near Eglin AFB, Valparaiso, Fla., at two week intervals starting about the middle of December.

The crewless B-17s will be ditched as part of an Air Materiel Command study of the structural damage planes receive in a water landing.

The resulting information will be used to determine the reliability of the model tests so that ditching characteristics of future USAF aircraft can be predicted more accurately. This is of special importance since ocean crossings of Air Force aircraft have become everyday occurrences.

Each B-17 used in the tests will carry 11 cameras, various devices to record decelerations and hydrodynamic pressures on the aircraft structure, and the normal radio and television camera equipment used for radio-controlled B-17 drones.

Weather Reconnaissance in England

The Air Force will send four RB-29 weather reconnaissance aircraft to Great Britain this week-end for 90 days' temporary duty to fly routine weather patrols over the north Atlantic and North Sea to furnish weather information for the Berlin airlift and the B-29s now operating from England. An RB-29 is a B-29 bomber converted to reconnaissance missions.

The aircraft and crews will be from the Air Weather Service's 374th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron at Fairfield-Suisun AFB, Calif. At the end of the 90-day period they will be replaced by other weather RB-29s at five-day intervals so the weather reporting will be uninterrupted.

Air Force Alaskan Mission

Charles A. Lindbergh was en route to Alaska this week to study technical problems for the Air Force. It is expected that he will visit other Pacific AF bases before returning to the United States. During recent months, he has been studying technical operational problems at AF installations in the United States.

Bureaucratic Medicine

("The Case Against Socialized Medicine," by Lawrence Sullivan, 53 pages, $1.50, Statesman Press, National Press Building, Washington 4, D. C.)

IF America is to maintain world leadership in health and welfare, medicine must be kept free of "bureaucratic shackles." This is the documented plea of Lawrence Sullivan, widely known Washington correspondent and radio reporter, in his pointed and forceful volume, "The Case Against Socialized Medicine."

Mr. Sullivan explores the historical background of socialized medicine as now being advocated in the United States. Then he places the issue in national perspective as he maintains that if American medicine can be taken over by the Government, then every other activity also may be socialized under a gigantic Federal bureaucracy.

"All history tells us that once the bureaucrats take over, freedom is smothered and progress stops," Mr. Sullivan explains. He says that government intervention inevitably means corruption of scientific standards and ethical codes.

But Mr. Sullivan contends also that this government intervention does not wait upon adoption of Socialized Medicine—rather it is taxpayer's money which already is being used to stir up controversy. "Virtually all of today's noisy agitation for socialized medicine emanates from Washington," Mr. Sullivan relates. "It originates in the government bureaus which have to do with health and welfare. The basic propaganda material compiled in these bureaus is distributed widely through various left-wing organizations, into every walk of American life."

As he has done so effectively in previous books ("All About Washington," "Prelude to Panic: The Story of the Bank Holiday," "The Dead Hand of Bureaucracy" and "Bureaucracy Runs Amuck,") Mr. Sullivan dwells in his new work upon Governmental "distortion" of statistics for propaganda purposes.

Mr. Sullivan, for many years a close student and observer of Federal procedures, contends that statistics relating to physical disability exemptions during operations of Selective Service during World War II were "Jobbed." He holds that whereas some Federal officers maintain that 5,280,000 men were rejected for disabilities which might have been prevented or corrected, a more objective analysis shows that this number is only 1,136,000.

Succinctly, Mr. Sullivan warns against the dangers of Socialized Medicine and says: "Should the Federal Government take over all hospitals and medical schools, those vital institutions of public service soon would be managed at the efficiency level of the City Hall and the Post Office."

Married Aviation Cadets

Effective 15 Nov., the Air Force will accept married men for aviation cadet training.

Qualified young men between the ages of 20 and 26½ years of age, with two years of college education or the ability to pass an equivalent examination, with good physical condition and high moral and personal qualifications, will now be eligible for aviation cadet training, regardless of marital status.

The first married applicants will be enrolled in the March classes.

Memorial to Airmen

The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL has been informed that the campaign to erect a memorial to the five American flyers shot down over Yugoslavia in 1946 has realized approximately 90 per cent of its goal.

Contributions should be addressed to the sponsor of the memorial project, the Hon. Arthur Bliss Lane, former U. S. Minister to Yugoslavia, at 2442 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Sports Front

NEXT Saturday (27 Nov.) is so far as athletic West Point and Annapolis are concerned, the great day, the raison d'être. This is the day of the Army-Navy game.

As usual, the contest will be staged in Philadelphia's huge Municipal Stadium. The facilities there are not of the best, and some of the spectators in the farther reaches might as well be seeing the game from the corner of Broad and Market, but it is possible to cram upwards of 102,000 persons into the place, which makes it probably the best choice of all available arenas.

Such mundane matters, however, are of small concern to the faithful. They will undergo discomforts which would come under the head of torture if not endured voluntarily. Most of those present will get a tremendous boot out of the whole thing, though, so it all works out for the best. The parade of midshipmen and cadets, the presence of high brass, and the sight of pretty girls wrapped in pretty furs all make up the color of this most colorful sporting spectacle in America. This will satisfy a large part of those who journey out South Broad Street next Saturday, but, amazingly enough, there will even be some who go to see a game of football. They are the ones who are most likely to be disappointed.

The game itself figures to be as one-sided as a henpecked husband's domestic give-and-take. Use any yardstick you choose: comparative scores, newspaper predictions, gambling odds, a ouija board. They all add up to one thing—a smashing Army victory. And that would be that except for one vital factor; this is the one game where such imponderables as spirit and inspiration figure so strongly as to render scientific prognostication practically useless.

Remember 1946? Blanchard, Davis, and company were riding the crest of the wave. They were invincible. Navy would achieve a moral victory merely by showing up for the game. That's what all of us thought then. But it didn't turn out that way. The end of the game found Navy knocking on Army's goal line for the winning touchdown. A few seconds more and the Midshipmen would have turned in the upset of the decade. So you see, anything can happen here.

Of course, everyone expects undefeated Army to trounce winless Navy, but good. But don't count the Midshipmen out until they've counted themselves out on the field. Remember 1946!

It has been said that the true criterion of greatness is the ability to come through in the face of adversity. If this be the case, then Army has a great football team, for it met little else but adversity in Philadelphia last week against Penn.

In one of the most exciting football games of this or any other year, the Cadets overcame a one point deficit by scoring the winning touchdown with less than thirty seconds left in the ball game. They also added the extra point to make the final tally 26-20.

The highlight, perhaps, was Bobby Jack Stuart's 103-yard runback of a kick-off, but this was only one of the priceless moments in an afternoon of football that saw the cadets come from behind not once, but thrice.

Navy lost to Columbia, 13-0. Playing most of the game without the services of Bill Hawkins and Pete Williams, who were forced to retire before the end of the first period, the Midshipmen still had enough left to stage several scoring threats. All of these went by the board, however, either because of fumbles or because of Columbia's defensive strength. Either way, it added up to a scoreless afternoon for Navy.

Army and Navy Journal

November 20, 1948

Only a win over Army will salvage this most disgruntling Navy season in umpteen years.

When you move, notify the Army and Navy Journal of your change of address so you will not miss any issues.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1948

"I consider adequate housing for dependents of airmen one of the most serious problems confronting the Air Force today."—W. STUART SYMINGTON, SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE.

THE unfortunate Smith versus Smith episode in which Lieutenant General Holland M. Smith of the Marines publicly attacked the combat record of Major General Ralph Smith of the Army, serves to highlight the need for a clearer definition of the role and mission of the Army and of the Marines in any future conflict. Some progress in this direction has been made, but even greater clarification is necessary if incidents of this nature are to be avoided in the future. The question of personalities is not of primary consideration, the issue is the success of an operation, and the consequent saving of time and casualties. Under a recent restatement of policies by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Marine Corps is given the task of maintaining a small force of all arms, including aviation, to be used in support of Naval campaigns. It will also have the duty of developing the technique of amphibious warfare, and its usual task of protecting Naval bases and guarding Naval stores. By organization, training and tradition the Marines are exceptionally qualified for these missions. Their high morale, their spirit and dash, and their reputation for gallantry in action are of tremendous value in the shock action of an initial landing on a hostile beach. Necessarily the Marine Corps will always be relatively small. Its personnel will almost all be assigned to combat units. It is not adapted to extended land campaigns, where comprehensive logistical support is required. Normally its action will be under Naval guns, with the Navy furnishing supply trains, medical evacuation and other services. Rarely will Marine units larger than a division be used in a single operation. In the Pacific in the last war Marine and Army divisions occasionally served in the same corps under Marine command in land operations. This proved to be a mistake and, as in the case of the Smith versus Smith incident, occasionally led to friction because of differences of training and combat techniques of the two services. Such differences may be lessened but cannot be wholly eliminated. In the interest of combat efficiency, Marines should remain under Naval command, and Marine divisions should not be placed directly under Army command, nor Army units under Marine command.

MEMBERS of the Armed Forces are looking forward with much interest to the detailed conclusions and recommendations contained in the forthcoming report covering the joint exercises concluded at Eglin Field last week. The operation was known as Combine III and covered a period of six weeks. Participating were planes of the Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps and paratroops and ground soldiers of the Army. Five hundred planes and 8,000 men took part in the exercises. Some 3,600 students from various service schools in all parts of the country made short visits to the area to observe special phases of the operation. The purpose of the exercises was to demonstrate air support of ground troops and coordination of ground and air elements of our military establishments, as well as to indoctrinate advanced military students with the current tactical doctrine of the conduct of joint combat operations. Many tons of live bombs and rockets were used and there was created an impression of realism rarely present in peacetime maneuvers. The operation provided splendid training for air and ground troops participating and it also served as a test for new equipment and techniques. In any conflict in the foreseeable future the air-ground team will be an inseparable combination. Continuous tactical air support will be essential to the progress of ground troops. Air transport will be widely used for the movement and supply of armies. It is vital, therefore, that peacetime combat training be of a joint character, in order that present and future commanders may know and appreciate the capabilities and limitations of air and ground troops, armament and equipment. While the exercises at Eglin Field were highly successful there were numerous developments which point to improvements in future operations. The director and his assistants are working on a report which will make specific recommendations for future exercises and note the changes in tactics and techniques indicated by experience. It is hoped that these combined exercises will be extended to embrace the maximum possible number of troops. Such training is absolutely necessary if our Services are to be kept ready for any eventuality.

WITH the retirement of Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul on 31 Dec., the Army loses a personnel officer responsible for revolutionary changes in the promotion system. During the past three years General Paul has so changed the Army policy of personnel management, that what he did will exercise a lasting influence in this field. He entered the military service as a private in the Colorado National Guard. After service on the Mexican border as an enlisted man, he was commissioned in the Regular Army. Through brilliant service in two World Wars he rose to the rank of lieutenant general. His advancement through the ranks from private to general officer constitutes a splendid inspiration to all soldiers of intelligence and ambition. During World War II he commanded the famous 26th Division of the New England National Guard, recruited largely from his native state of Massachusetts. Under his leadership this division fought with distinction all the way across France and Western Germany. Following the German surrender General Paul joined General Eisenhower's headquarters as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, and later became Deputy Chief of Staff of the United States Forces in Europe. In October 1945, General Paul came to Washington as head of the Personnel Division of the General Staff. He was immediately confronted with the colossal task of hastily demobilizing our huge war Army and rebuilding a new Regular Army. He developed policies for the recruitment of officers and men for the new Army and Air Force. New legislation was written and piloted through Congress. Thousands of new officers were integrated in the Regular service. General Paul secured new and revolutionary laws for the promotion and separation of officers. He devised advanced methods for career guidance of officers and enlisted men. These innovations greatly raised the morale of all ranks and provided an incentive for a marked increase in efficiency. General of the Army Eisenhower said of him that he is the ablest G-1 the Army ever has had. In retiring to civil life General Paul takes with him the best wishes of the Army.

Service Humor

With a Prescription

A woman approached the clerk in a fruit market and asked for a pound of grapes.

"My husband is fond of them," she said. "Tell me, do you know whether they have been sprayed with any kind of poison?"

"No, ma'am," replied the clerk. "You'll have to get that at the drug store."

Forward Looking

Prospective father-in-law to his daughter's young man: "And what are your prospects?"

"Oh, pretty good! Unless your daughter has misled me," was the reply.

Neatly Put

Three soldiers wanted to discuss some things at lunch but they couldn't find an empty table in the entire restaurant. Finally they sat at one where a little old lady was eating.

One said: "You know boys, it's been three weeks since I've been able to take a bath." The second caught on quick and said: "Heck, it's been at least six weeks since I've had a bath."

"Shucks, you guys are plumb clean. I haven't had a bath since January," claimed the third.

They waited to see what would happen. The little old woman finally piped up: "Will one of you stinkers please pass the salt."

Approach

An American soldier in Germany was leaning against a tree on a Berlin street reading his hometown paper. A German citizen walked by and politely inquired "Vos sachs do?"

The soldier looked up from the sports page and said: "They lost six to four."

It's Easy

Residents in the North woods are able to afford mink coats and hats. The reason being up there you cut out the retailer, the wholesaler and the jobber. You deal directly with the mink.

(This Department is maintained as a service for ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL subscribers. Please send return postage for direct reply.)

H.S.C.—Having received the enlistment allowance in 1941, you may not now make claim for payment of this allowance for years prior to that date.

D.E.D.—You are entitled to reimbursement for travel performed by your dependents to Denver, Colo., and to travel pay for them from that city to Mitchell AFB, N. Y., when quarters are available (AR 35-4880, paragraph 35).

G.W.V.—Your retired pay as a major under the provisions of Public Law 810, 80th Congress, will be based on your active service. Retired for length of service (more than 27 years) your retired pay as a major would be $314.12 each month.

F.N.G.—S. 2821 is now Public Law 877, 80th Congress. This law pertains only to disabled veterans who are receiving a pension on a percentage basis. Officers retired for disability with retired pay computed at 75 per cent of their active duty pay are not benefited by this law.

In the midst of rumors of war and arm-ing by great nations it is announced from St. Petersburg that all the powers have accepted the Czar's invitation to send delegates to the proposed disarmament conference. Each power will be represented by three delegates and it will be a record diplomatic assembly in point of numbers.

80 Years Ago

Two or three thousand men, well-mounted, are sufficient for a successful campaign (against the Indians). The trouble has been, in some former campaigns that in some cases, too great a reliance was had upon infantry. Even our cavalry have been often unable, with their heavy mounts to compete with the light-mounted flying Indian. The nature of the force required is that of cavalry, armed with breech-loaders, and ready to act as infantry on reaching the enemy—the "mounted infantry" of our late war.

Is This Map in Your Future?

Thousands of officers who have served with you are back in the map rooms following fast-changing world events and moulding a modern Army and Air Force to keep pace with them.

Like you, they too were separated from the Armed Forces after V-J Day. For many solid reasons, however, they have chosen to wear again the uniform they wore with such pride during the war.

They applied for active duty and for some time now have been enjoying the work they know so well. They are teaching younger men the lessons they learned through experience. They have taken their rightful place as leaders, experts, professionals of military life.

They are enjoying, too, the numerous advantages of military life... opportunities for advanced studies in technical, command, or civilian schools... tours of interesting duty at stations at home and overseas.

And, in addition to all these other advantages, they are confident in the knowledge that each year of service increases the amount of their retirement pay under the new reserve retirement law.

You have the opportunity — now — to return to active duty and live an officer's life once again. Your expanding Army and Air Force need men with your qualifications and your experience. You have earned a place in the Army and Air Force of today.

For complete forms and information, see the nearest Reserve or National Guard unit instructor.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—The western powers have rejected the proposal of Herbert V. Evatt, president of the General Assembly, and Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, for a conference with Russia on the Berlin situation. At a press conference at Key West, President Truman made it clear that there would be no more such negotiations until the Soviet Union lifted the hunger blockade of the western sectors of Berlin. The decision was echoed in the formal replies of the western powers to the Evatt-Lie suggestion.

Russia replied that it favored a conference provided that all current German questions were considered. Obviously hinting at a Truman-Stalin parley, the Soviet note spoke of the desirability of personal contact and exchange of views of heads of states. The President, however, stated that he would not go to Russia to meet Stalin, but would be glad to confer with him in Washington. It is quite probable that another effort will be made by the smaller powers on the Security Council to achieve a compromise solution of the Berlin problem.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall will return from Paris this weekend and will confer with President Truman and Ambassador W. Averell Harriman on Monday. The President indicated that he hopes that Secretary Marshall will agree to continue in the cabinet, despite the Secretary's desire to retire to civil life.

The critical military situation in China will undoubtedly be reviewed by the President and the Secretary of State at the forthcoming conference. In the current battle between Communist and Nationalist troops in the vicinity of Suchow, both sides have made extravagant and conflicting claims of victory. The situation is confused but it seems reasonably certain that the Nationalists have achieved some local success.

On his return from Europe Defense Secretary James E. Forrestal announced that 1,250 additional United States Marines and two transports are being sent to Tsingtao to assist in the evacuation of more than 4,000 American civilians now in China. The Marines will join 3,600 Marines already at this port. On Thursday Mr. Forrestal flew from Washington to Key West to discuss the Chinese situation with the President.

American funds appropriated by the last Congress for military aid to China have been practically all allocated and further assistance must await the convening of the new Congress in January. The President has stated that he has no intention of calling a special session. It seems probable that the next Congress will authorize additional help, but probably it will be somewhat less than the billion dollars estimated as an immediate requirement for that strife-torn country.

While in Europe Secretary Forrestal visited Germany, France and England, and conferred with French and British leaders. He expressed great pride in the success of the Allied airlift in providing food and fuel for Berliners cut off from land transport by the Soviet blockade. Additional planes have been assigned to the operation and a new field in the French sector of Berlin is being opened. These developments will add several hundred tons to the daily quota of supplies being sent to Berlin by air.

In the General Assembly of the United Nations, Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinski again delivered a diatribe against the United Nations, shouting that America planned to direct an atomic Pearl Harbor against Russian cities, quoting General George Kenney as threatening such an attack.

The Security Council of the United Nations has adopted a resolution calling for an armistice in Palestine, with Jews and Arabs withdrawing to pre-determined lines as a preliminary to peace negotiations. This action was unacceptable to both Jews and Arabs and it is difficult to see how the United Nations can force acquiescence. The Jews are particularly hostile to the requirement that Israeli troops be withdrawn from the recently conquered Negev Desert.

French Interior Minister Jules Moch has declared that his government has proof that the Soviet-dominated Cominform sent nearly a million dollars to France to foment strikes and disorders with a view to wrecking the Marshall plan. The government has apparently succeeded in breaking the strikes and in suppressing incipient uprisings. However, the Queuille regime is still experiencing rough going in its uneasy alliance with dissident political parties and its overthrow in the relatively near future is freely predicted. The success of DeGaulle in the election of members of the National Council is indicative of an early clamor by the Gaullists for a general election of members of the all-powerful French Assembly.

Greece has a new government almost indistinguishable from the old one which resigned last week. It is again headed by the aged Themistokles Sophoulis and most of its members are unchanged. Apparently it is pledged to more vigorous action against the Communist rebels who continue to infest the mountainous regions.

In a querulous public statement Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia complains that his Communist neighbors treat his country worse than they do the western capitalist countries. This utterance was undoubtedly called forth by the increasing economic pressure placed on Yugoslavia at the insistence of Russia, after the Cominform broke with Tito and charged him with deviation from the Moscow party line by his overzealous nationalism.

The whole world joined Britain this week in greeting a probable future British king, born on Sunday to the Princess Elizabeth. The birth of this princeling furnished a welcome, if momentary, relief from the world tension occasioned by the continued intransigent attitude of Russia toward her western neighbors.

Admiral Sir Rhoderick McGrigor, Commander-in-Chief of the British Home Fleet, paid an official visit to Washington this week. He conferred with Defense Secretary James E. Forrestal, Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan and Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations. He also visited the Naval Academy at Annapolis and reviewed the regiment of midshipmen.

In Canada Prime Minister McKenzie King resigned for reasons of health after completing 21 years of outstanding service as head of the government. He was succeeded by Louis St. Laurent, a distinguished lawyer with a fine record as Minister of External Affairs. No change in foreign or domestic policies is indicated by the change.

Former Premier Tojo of Japan and five other ranking political and military figures were sentenced to death for war crimes, and other Japanese leaders were given varying terms of imprisonment by an international tribunal. The verdict came after many weary months of trial. Irrespective of opinions as to the justice and advisability of the sentences there seems to be practically unanimous accord in the view that there was an unconscionable delay in these proceedings.

Hoover Re-Organization Commission—President Truman has made it clear that he favors prompt and careful Congressional consideration of the recommendations of the Federal Government Re-organization Commission, headed by former President Herbert Hoover. These recommendations will be contained in a report to be submitted to Congress early next January. There had been some speculation that the new Democratic Congress would pay little attention to the report, since the Commission had been created by the Republican Eightieth Congress. However, the President let it be known that he strongly supports a re-organization program that will result in greater governmental efficiency and economy. The Commission is bi-partisan, with membership equally divided between the two major political parties, and Mr. Hoover has emphasized that there will be no partisan bias in its findings. In a recent press conference he outlined some of the major aspects of the commission's duties, but did not discuss details of any contemplated re-organization of the National Military Establishment. However, the Commission is known to have devoted a great deal of attention to this problem and its findings will be of tremendous importance to the future of the Armed Forces. Consideration is being given to the current operation of unification of defense agencies and to various proposals for strengthening the authority of the Secretary of Defense.

Secretary of Defense—The recent journey of the Secretary of Defense to Europe brought out the interesting fact that in the absence of the Secretary there is no acting Secretary of Defense. The law creating this office provides for no succession. When the Secretary is absent or disabled the country is without a Secretary of Defense. The Hoover Commission on governmental re-organization has expressed its interest in this situation and will undoubtedly join Defense Secretary James Forrestal in recommending that the next Congress create an Under Secretary of Defense who would automatically become acting Secretary in the absence of the Secretary. He would also relieve the Secretary of many of the administrative details of the Department.

Army Commanders to Meet—General Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, has called a three-day meeting of the heads of the major Army Commands in continental United States to be held in Washington beginning 20 November. A similar meeting was held here several months ago. The purpose of the meeting is to inform the commanders of the details of the recent re-organization of the Department of the Army and to discuss other matters affecting Army administration in the Zone of the Interior. The field commanders will also exchange information relative to the development of training incident to the current expansion of the Army. Those who will attend the meeting are General Jacob L. Devers, Chief Army Field Forces; General Courtney H. Hodges, First Army; Lieutenant General Leonard T. Gerow, Second Army; Lieutenant General Alvan C. Gillem, Third Army; General Thomas T. Handy, Fourth Army; Lieutenant General Stephen J. Chamberlin, Fifth Army; General Mark W. Clark, Sixth Army; and Major General Hobart R. Gay, Military District of Washington.

The Aircraft Industry—Airplane manufacturers of the United States are to be congratulated on their ability to carry forward promptly the program of construction of aircraft for the Air Force and the Navy and at the same time to go on with the manufacture of planes for export. Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, USAF-Ret., President of the Aircraft Industries Association, who reported this fact this week, also pointed out that the export phase of the industry helps to keep it in the vigorous condition required by National Security. In this instance, the exports being discussed are planes of civilian characteristics such as transports and personal planes, but it is recalled that the export of airplanes to France and Great Britain prior to World War II played a large part in getting the industry into shape for the greater task of equipping our own war forces when the blow came.

WACS and Soldiers' Home—Enlisted personnel of the Regular Army Women's Army Corps are entitled to the same privileges as all other enlisted personnel of the Army—including the right to be considered for admission to Soldiers' Home.

Therefore, the Finance Department is instructing its personnel, via an amended version of AR 35-2440, that monthly deductions of 10 cents are to be made from the pay of WAC enlistees for support of the Soldiers' Home.

Army officials say that this must be done despite the fact that at the present time there are no facilities for women at the Home. However, it is said that if the deductions were not made the rights of the WAC enlistees could become jeopardized. The Judge Advocate General maintains that WACS are entitled to full privileges of enlisted personnel; the Finance Department will safeguard at least one of these privileges by making the monthly deductions.

The issue of the WAC assessment was reviewed at a meeting this week of the Soldiers' Home Board of Commissioners.

Corps of Engineers—The Engineer, General Headquarters, Far East Command, is preparing for publication an eight volume official report covering activities of the Corps of Engineers in the Southwest Pacific in World War II. The initial volume, titled "Engineers in Theater Operations," is slated for release this month. The narrative covers the prewar conditions and major campaigns from Pearl Harbor to the occupation of Japan and Korea.

Walter Reed Intern Applications—Army Medical Center officials report that 22 out of the present roster of 23 interns have applied for commissions in the Regular Army. This means that almost 80 per cent of the interns there are seeking Army careers.

Army Nurse Corps—Four civilian nurses have been appointed as advisers to Col. Mary G. Phillips, Director of the Army Nurse Corps, Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, the Surgeon General of the Army, announced this week.

The advisory committee will consist of Mrs. Lulu St. Clair Blaine, director, Michigan Community Nursing Center for the State of Michigan; Miss Agnes Gellinas, president, National League of Nursing Education; Miss Katherine J. Densford, former president of the American Nurses Association, and dean of the School of Nursing at the University of Minnesota, and Miss Ella Best, executive secretary, American Nurses Association.

Quartermaster Corps—Lt. Col. Austin A. Miller has been named as Assistant Commandant of the Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Va. Lt. Col. Raymond H. Tiffany becomes Chief of Curriculum and Lt. Col. Clarence D. McGowen, Officer-in-Charge, Officer Courses.

Bureau of Aeronautics—Student officers attending the Naval Postgraduate School, Annapolis, recently heard Capt. G. F. Beardsley, USN, of the Bureau of Aeronautics, on the topic, "Fiscal and Budgetary Problems."

Capt. A. L. Baird, of the Bureau of Aeronautics, addressed the same students the week previous. He selected as his topic, "Functions of the Power Plant Including Current Engine Development."

Navy Nurse Corps—Capt. Nellie Jane DeWitt, NC, USN, attended the Diamond Jubilee of Nursing banquet held 16 Nov. in New York City, commemorating the seventy-fifth anniversary of professional nursing in the United States. The banquet was the highlight of Nursing Progress Week, sponsored by the American Nurses' Association and observed by nurses throughout the nation. Miss DeWitt was a member of the national committee, headed by the President of the United States and included leaders prominent in public life as well as those of the Nursing profession. The Nursing Progress Week was to focus attention on the need for graduate nurses throughout the country, and to pay tribute to those who founded and guided nursing schools and the development of nursing education during the past seventy-five years.

Transportation Corps—Maj. Gen. Frank A. Helleman, Chief of Transportation, delivered an address before the Traffic Club of Washington, 10 Nov., discussing the trend of transportation planning in the National Defense organization, and the necessity for coordination of all media of transportation for maximum national transportation efficiency and economy.

Brig. Gen. Paul F. Yount, Assistant Chief of Transportation for Operations, delivered a lecture at the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., 17 Nov., on overseas transportation problems during World War II.

Naval Academy—Among the officers recently assigned to the various academic departments at the U. S. Naval Academy for duty were one Lieutenant Commander, one Lieutenant and five Ensigns.

Lt. Comdr. Clark Dunn, (SC), USN, and Ens. Kenneth A. Murray, USN, have reported for duty in the Executive Department in Bancroft Hall. Assigned to the Department of Marine Engineering, recently were Ensigns Chantee Lewis, USN, and Jack M. Stufflebeam, USN. Reporting to the Department of Seamanship and Navigation were Lt. George W. Klauer, USN, and Ensign Andrew L. Frahler, USN. Ensign Charles A. Fowler III, USNR, recently reported for duty in the Department of Electrical Engineering.

Judge Advocate General's Department—Under The Judge Advocate General's officer procurement program Maj. Earl M. Bradely and Capt. William W. Kramer have begun a 90-day tour of duty with a view toward direct commissions in the Regular Army.

Capt. John Barr and Chief Warrant Officer Morris R. Berger have departed JAGO for overseas assignments with U. S. Army Caribbean. Maj. Edward L. Stevens, JAGD-Res., was recalled to active duty and assigned JAGO.

Col. John F. Richter, JAGD-Res., has begun a 60-day tour of active duty with JAGO. Colonel Richter will be engaged in preparing plans for a JAG Reserve Officer training program.

Air Force Officer Promotions—The Air Force selection board considering officers for temporary promotion to approximately 250 billets has adjourned. However, officials could not say this week when results of the deliberations would be made public.

The same board is now sitting to review records of officers who should have received permanent promotions as a result of recent selection processes but who were overlooked for one reason or another.

Meantime, Air Force personnel officials said the board to select officers for temporary promotion to lieutenant colonel is not slated to meet until next month.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—Lt. Comdr. Frances L. Willoughby, MCW, USN, and Lt. Trowbridge R. Maft, MC, USN, have transferred from active Reserve status to the Medical Corps of the Regular Navy. Lt. Comdr. Willoughby, now on duty at the Naval Dispensary, Navy Department, Washington, D. C., is the first woman medical officer to transfer into the Regular Navy. Lt. Maft is on duty at the Naval Hospital, St. Albans, Long Island, New York.

Lt. Doris Cranmore, MSC, USN, (Medical Allied Science Section) was recently appointed in the Regular Navy and is the first woman to be accepted in the Medical Service Corps of the Regular Navy. She is on duty at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md.

A recent new appointee in the Medical Service Corps of the Regular Navy was Lt. Ralph B. Lopez (Optometry) assigned to Naval Hospital, St. Albans, Long Island, New York.

Signal Corps—Six reserve officers currently are receiving short periods of active duty training in key Signal Corps positions. They are Col. John W. Atwood, Col. Fred M. Fister, Lt. Col. Joseph Miller, Lt. Col. Burdette H. Buckingham, Maj. Henry C. Viken, and 1st Lt. William E. Albert.

The Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories have developed a simple device for determining cloud heights from aircraft. The instrument consists of a modified illuminated gunsight which is mounted on a frame and coupled to two indexing arms which slide along a graduated scale. In use, the gunsight is trained on some prominent cloud feature which is tracked for a short period of time, usually about one minute. During this tracking, one of the indexing arms remains fixed on the scale and the other moves. At the end of the tracking period the vertical distance between the plane and the cloud may be computed easily from the air speed, time of tracking and the difference in scale readings at the two indexing arms. The actual cloud height may be determined by adding or subtracting from the plane's altitude depending on whether the cloud is above or below the plane.

Wills for Airmen—The Air Force has instructed commanders to encourage personnel to arrange their personal affairs in a satisfactory manner by making a will. But the Air Force in AF Letter No. 34-46 emphasized that no airman is to be ordered to fill out a will, since to be legally effective such a document must be made "free and voluntary."

Provost Marshal General—The Criminal Investigation Division of the Provost Marshal General's Office is the staunchest military bulwark against any breakdown of American principles of justice within the Armed Forces. Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, Jr., The Provost Marshal General, declared this week in a talk made before the Criminal Investigation Division Agents Association. The occasion was the first annual dinner of the organization held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City.

The association is composed of present and former members of the Army's C.I.D.

The Provost Marshal General referred to the American judicial concept that every person is innocent until proved guilty. He pointed to all the modern facilities for the investigation of crimes made available to C.I.D. agents as an indication that every atom of evidence must be carefully assembled, factually analyzed and impartially presented as a means of protection for the innocent as well as for identification of the guilty.

Airways Communications—From Wiesbaden, Germany, the Airways & Air Communications Service reports such interesting figures as: a ground-aircraft radio contact every 15 seconds around the clock; a radio tower contact every minute at Tempelhof airdrome in Berlin, and 3,000 radar blind-landings at Wiesbaden within a month.

Cross-training, an old habit with Airways & Air Communications Service, is paying rich dividends in the "Vittles" Airlift. A good example is the case of T/Sgt. Walter J. Mysona, and his control tower class. Although his Wiesbaden control tower was faced with the zooming traffic of the Airlift, T/Sgt. Mysona set up a simulated control tower and began teaching a class of 21 men. Within three weeks T/Sgt. Mysona and his instructors turned out enough operators to ease the talent-drought in the towers. Training officers say that T/Sgt. Mysona's intensive school was one of the best that has ever come to their attention. Lt. Col. Jesse R. Guthrie, commander of the European wing of AACCS, has commended the sergeant for his work in the school.

Army Field Forces—General Jacob L. Devers, Chief, Army Field Forces, was at Fort Benning, Ga., 14-16 Nov. to attend a civilian orientation conference. He was accompanied by Lt. Col. John F. P. Hill, Aide. Also attending the conference was Maj. Gen. Doyle O. Hickey, Assistant Chief for Developments.

Three officers of the British Army visited Fort Monroe on 16 Nov. to confer with the Training and Developments Sections of the Office, Chief, Army Field Forces, on problems pertaining to anti-aircraft artillery and air counter-measures. The group included Brig. H. A. Hounsell, Commandant of Anti-Aircraft Artillery, England; Col. M. D. S. Saunders, Chief Instructor of Equipment at the same school, and Lt. Col. Inigo-Jones, Anti-Aircraft and Radar representative of the British Joint Services Mission, Washington, D. C.

National Guard—Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, Chief, National Guard Bureau, has announced that 43 of the 75 infantry regiments assigned to the 25 National Guard Infantry Divisions have completed organization.

One-third of the 21 Regimental Combat Team regiments also have been completely organized. Of the 567 component units of the 21 Regimental Combat Teams in the National Guard troop basis, 520, or 91.7 per cent, were Federally recognized by October 1.

Of the 2,625 component units in the 25 infantry divisions assigned the post-war National Guard, 2,438, or 92.9 per cent, were organized on that date, General Cramer said.

Finance Department—Col. Emmett J. Bean, Assistant Chief of Finance and Commanding Officer of the Army Finance Center, was the guest of the Mayor of St. Louis at ceremonies opening "St. Louis Week." The theme of the exhibit of the Army Finance Center was "St. Louis, Home of the Army Dollar."

Navy Cold Weather "War"—The Navy's recent maneuvers at Argentia, Newfoundland, met a reversal that seriously imperiled its purpose. Designed primarily to test reactions of men and equipment under cold weather conditions, the operation drew a blank from the very beginning. The weather didn't live up to expectations. Forty degrees was the average temperature recorded and the water was even warmer.

Navy Dental Corps—The Dental Facility at the Naval Medical Research Institute has initiated work on the two following dental research projects recently approved by the Surgeon General: "Analysis and Classification of Literature on Experimental Oral Bacteriology" with Comdr. Wheatcroft as principle investigator; and "Effects of Radiation on Oral Tissues, Structures, and Fluids" with Comdr. English as principal investigator.

The Commander of the Great Lakes Naval Training Center announced that the Dental Department exhibit had been judged as the outstanding Navy Day presentation at that station. Capt. H. J. Grassie, Commander of the Center, presented the first place award to Capt. C. W. Schantz, head of the Dental Department.

Army Chaplain Corps—Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Luther D. Miller, Chief of Chaplains, and Chaplain (Col.) Martin C. Poch, Executive Officer, Office Chief of Chaplains, returned to Washington, D. C., 14 Nov., concluding 5 weeks' visitation of chaplains in Hawaii, Guam, Okinawa, the Philippine Islands, Korea and Japan.

During their stay in the Far East Command, Chaplains Maj. Gen. Luther D. Miller and Col. Martin C. Poch were extensively entertained at both luncheons and dinners given in their honor. The following are among the notables who were hosts for the visiting chaplains: General of the Army and Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William A. Beiderlinden, Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Walton H. Walker, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles W. Ryder, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William B. Bradford, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Milton B. Halsey, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Paul J. Mueller, and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Edward M. Almond.

Air Force Engineers—The Air Force said this week it needs 500 qualified Air Installations officers for maintenance, alteration, repair, extension and master planning of airfield facilities.

At the present time, officers on loan from the Army are fulfilling these responsibilities.

Air Force construction by contract will continue to be performed by the Army Corps of Engineers, but all other installation engineer duties will be a direct AF responsibility—hence the need for the 500 officers.

The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL was told this week that during the last year 150 engineer officers have transferred to the Air Force from the Army, of which about 50 were Regulars.

There are now approximately 980 Corps of Engineer (Army) officers in the Air Force, of whom about one third are serving with troops. The Army provides the Air Force with aviation engineer troops.

To indoctrinate new Air Installations officers the Air Force maintains at Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio, an Air Installation Engineering Special Staff Officer Course.

Promotion List of Regular Army Second Lieutenants

PUBLICATION below of the names of the 1,179 permanent second lieutenants on the Army promotion list terminates the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL's printing of the promotion list standing of every officer in the Regular Army in the rank of colonel or below.

It is from these promotion lists that the Army will begin making permanent promotions on 1 Jan.

Thus, promotion list standing now takes on increased importance, for henceforth "pass overs" will count towards forced separation.

Therefore, readers would do well to preserve the recent promotion list standings published in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL. These will provide a valuable source of reference in ensuing months.

Following are the names of the permanent second lieutenants. Wherever the officer is serving in a higher temporary rank, this status is indicated.

Nurses Meet Army Leaders

General Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, told presidents of 40 state professional nursing associations this week that without an adequate number of nurses the Army will suffer serious consequences.

Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, Director, Personnel and Administration, said that "by your participation in this program you are showing the military and the nation as a whole that your profession has the same consideration for your country as you have for your patients."

Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Biles, Army Surgeon General, told the nursing officials that their assistance is invaluable to the Army.

Prepare for the future with Savings Bonds.

SERVICE SOCIAL NEWS

THE Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall had a week-end guest in the person of Mrs. J. P. Zollicoffer of Henderson, N. C., who accompanied them to the football game last Saturday, the 13th, between North Carolina and Maryland. The party was entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Fred Morrison, whose other guests included Mrs. O. Max Gardner, widow of the U. S. Ambassador to England.

After the game Secretary and Mrs. Royall and their house guest were entertained at a buffet supper by Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Love, the company going on later to the North Carolina State Society reception given for the visiting football team.

Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Royall also attended the gala reception given Friday last by the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis in honor of visiting Greek bankers, Messrs. Theodor and Costi Ellasco and their wives.

Mrs. Royall, always engaging lovely, was in a black lace frock while her guest, Mrs. Zollicoffer wore brown crepe sprinkled with bronze beads and brown feathers in a hat of matching shade.

Members of the Army Nurse Corps and particularly the personnel at Walter Reed General Hospital, where she is Principal Chief Nurse, are proud of Lt. Col. Ida W. Danielson, NC, USA, who this week was among the American officers decorated by Sir Oliver Franks, British Ambassador, in ceremonies held at the Embassy in Washington. Awarded to Colonel Danielson in the name of the King was the distinction of being an Honorary Officer of the Military Division of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. The following citation was read at the ceremony:

"As Director of Nursing Services, Communications Zone, European Theater of Operations, U. S. Army, Colonel Danielson rendered unusually distinctive service of mutual benefit to the fighting men of the British and American Forces. Her wise supervision and skillful coordination of the activities of approximately 18,000 members of the ANC under her jurisdiction together with

Weddings and Engagements

MAJ. GEN. and Mrs. Thomas G. Hearn announce the engagement of their daughter, Jean Elizabeth, to Capt. Charles R. Sniffin, USA.

He is the son of Maj. Charles D. Sniffin, USMC, Ret., of Norfolk and Washington. Jean is a graduate of Miss Hamilton's of San Francisco and Stephens College, Mo. She is the granddaughter of the late Lt. Gen. Edgar Jadwin and Mrs. Jadwin of 2540 Massachusetts Avenue.

General and Mrs. Hearn have settled in Palo Alto, Calif. since retiring. They will fly east and be with Mrs. Jadwin for their daughter's wedding, which will take place late this month in the Fort Myer Chapel.

Captain Sniffin attended The Citadel in Charleston before joining the Army. He served in the 88th Division of the Fifth Army in Italy. He is going to Bulgaria as an assistant military attaché in January.

Vice Adm. and Mrs. John L. McCrea have announced the engagement of their daughter, Meredith, to Lt. Comdr. Richard Martin Niles, USN.

Miss McCrea is a graduate of Georgetown Visitation Convent, Washington, D. C. She also studied voice in Philadelphia under Wilma Mirelle, wife of Capt. George Campbell. The McCrea family has resided in Makalapa since Admiral McCrea assumed his present duties as Deputy Commander in Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet, in January.

Lieutenant Commander Niles is the son of Mrs. Elmer K. Niles and the late Lieutenant Commander Niles, of Boston. He is a graduate of Roxbury Latin School, West Roxbury, Mass., and of the U. S. Naval Academy class of '40. He is at present Aide and Flag Lieutenant to Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, Commander in Chief Pacific and U. S. Pacific Fleet.

No date has been set for the wedding.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Ann Lutz, of Bethlehem, Pa., and 1st Lt. Walter A. Jacobson, 772 M. P. Battalion, was solemnized at the Post Chapel at Fort Knox, Ky. on 6 Nov. Lt. Col. Paul H. Maurer, Chaplain, Third Armored Division, performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lace covered satin gown with low ruffled neckline. Her corsage was formed of one large white orchid adorned with baby breaths.

Her attendants were Mrs. Evelyn Moore, Matron of Honor, and Mrs. Ruth Moore, Bridesmaid. The best man was Capt. Russel R. Moore; ushers were Capt. Walter Brady and 1st Lt. Ralph Andrew.

More than 100 guests attended the lovely double ring ceremony and the reception which followed at the Officers' Brick Club.

Capt. Milo Ryan Williams, USN, and Mrs. Williams, now stationed at the Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard, announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Lucretia, to Mr. Robert Cully Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Brown, of Haddonfield, N. J.

Miss Williams is a graduate of George Washington University, Washington, D. C., where she was a member of Chi Omega and Phi Beta Kappa. She is now with the Brazilian Embassy in Washington.

Mr. Brown attended the University of Pennsylvania and will graduate from the School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., in June. Serving as a Lieutenant in the Navy during the war, he commanded a PT boat and later served aboard the USS California.

The wedding will take place next summer.

The marriage of Mrs. Anne Clay Clay of Frankfort, Ky., and Brig. Gen. Samuel Tilden Ansell, former Acting Judge Advocate General of the Army in the first World War, took place in Washington, D. C., on Monday, 8 Nov., in the apartment of Brig. Gen. William Preston Wooten, USA, Ret., and Mrs. Wooten, brother-in-law and sister of the bride.

The ceremony, at which the Rev. Doctor Frank Blackwelder, rector of All Souls Memorial Episcopal Church, officiated, was witnessed by only the members of the two families. Mr. Burr Tracy Ansell served as best man for his father.

The new Mrs. Ansell is the widow of Chief Justice William Rogers Clay of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky. She has two sons, Mr. Sidney Clay and Mr. Rogers Clay. Mr. Sidney Clay, who is vice president of the United States Trust Company in Louisville, Ky., served as a captain of the Air Corps in Europe from 1942 to 1946. Mr. Rogers Clay is an official in the loan division of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. Ansell has two other sisters, Mrs. William Voorhees Judson, the widow of Brig. Gen. William Voorhees Judson, USA, and Miss Belle Clay, both of Lexington, Ky.

Mr. Burr Tracy Ansell and General Ansell's other son, Mr. Samuel T. Ansell, Jr., are associated with their father in the practice of law in Washington, D. C. Mr. Ansell, Jr., served as a Lieutenant in the United States Coast Guard during the second World War. General Ansell's daughter is Mrs. Harold N. Moorman, the wife of Lt. Col. Harold N. Moorman, USA, who is stationed in Japan.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Paul W. Rutledge announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ruth, to Maj. John J. Zurcher, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Zurcher, Jr., of Boyne City, Mich.

Miss Rutledge attended Ashley Hall, in Charleston, S. C., and is a graduate of Vassar College. She is now residing in the Panama Canal Zone, where General Rutledge was stationed prior to his arrival at Fort Bliss to take command of the 34th AAA Brigade.

Major Zurcher is presently stationed in the Canal Zone where he is a member of the staff of the Army Commander.

The wedding will take place at Ft. Bliss late in December. After the wedding the young couple will return to the Canal Zone.

The Glenn Memorial Chapel in Atlanta, Ga. was the scene of a lovely wedding on 28 Oct. when Miss Virginia Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix O. Cox became the bride of Ens. Hubert W. Keith, Jr., U. S. Coast & Geodetic Survey, and son of Col. Hubert W. Keith, USA, Ret. and Mrs. Keith of Denver, Colo.

Dr. A. Scott Patterson, uncle of the bridegroom performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown with an illusion veil caught to a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a white Bible topped with orchids and tuberoses. Miss Dorothy Cox was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant and Colonel Keith acted as his son's best man. L. A. Cox and Carl T. Cox, brothers of the bride were ushers.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will reside in Oakland, Calif. where Ensign Keith is stationed.

Mrs. Keith is a graduate of the High Museum of Art in Atlanta. Ensign Keith graduated at Georgia Tech.

FOR YOUR FRIENDS IN THE ARMED FORCES!

Racking your brains for a PERSONAL Christmas gift when every dollar counts for living expenses, there is a grand solution: A present of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, The Gazette of the Land, Sea and Air.

A subscription to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL for husband, brother or sweetheart means that for fifty-two times in the coming year your Christmas thought will be refreshed in the mind of the recipient. It will be appreciated by the soldier, the sailor or the airman.

Because, in the weekly ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL there will be found all the news so vital to their welfare.

Because, all Executive and Congressional acts will be reported in its columns.

Because of its publication of official circulars and reports and matters of service interest.

Because of its discussions of foreign relations.

Because of its forthright editorials.

Because, going on 86 years young, it vigorously and forcefully advocates all policies important to the welfare of the Services and with equal vigor and force opposes those harmful to them.

"UNITED STATES AT WAR"

A limited number of copies of the Army and Navy Journal's historic volumes, "United States At War" is still available. This series, the first volume of which was published 7 December 1942 with succeeding volumes each year until the War's end, forms a complete history of World War II in authoritative articles written by Military, Naval and civilian leaders actually in charge of the operations in the active theater and at home. Profusely illustrated they merit a place in every well balanced library.

A small number of each of the volumes is ready for distribution at $5.00 per copy in paper binding and $5.00 in cloth binding. (Copies of Volume I are available only in paper binding.)

The United States has now produced more than 100,000,000 motor cars, four times as many as have been manufactured by the rest of the world in the half century that has elapsed since the automobile was invented. During the current year more than 5,000,000 cars will be produced in American plants, possibly more than the record five and a quarter million made in 1929. The outlook for the immediate future of the motor trade continues excellent. Even allowing for duplications the backlog of orders for new cars will tax the capacity of the factories for at least another year.

Retail stores are looking forward to an unusually heavy Christmas season, despite the recent imposition of curbs on installment buying which may be expected to affect adversely the sale of some of the more expensive items. Merchants are planning extensive sales promotion through advertising, beginning earlier than usual this year. Department store inventories are exceptionally high, even considering seasonal increases, but trade is generally satisfactory.

Industrial management is somewhat fearful of union demands for a fourth round of wage increases. Organized labor is interpreting election returns as public approval of the campaign to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act and other restrictive legislation. Union leaders are pointing to current heavy corporate earnings in support of demands for new wage advances.

YODER—Died at Maxwell Field, Ala., 6 Nov. 1948, Lt. Col. Sheldon B. Yoder, USAF.

ObituariesMaj. Gen. Geo. C. Beach

Maj. Gen. George Corwin Beach, jr., MC, USA, Commanding General of the Army Medical Center and Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C., died at the hospital at 11:10 p.m. 18 Nov. General Beach had been ill for eight weeks.

General Beach was born in Topeka, Kans., 28 Oct. 1888. He was graduated from the Kansas City University Medical College in 1911. After serving his internship in the University Hospital of Kansas City, he was appointed Assistant Surgeon of the Soldiers Home at Hampton, Va., where he remained until 1914 when he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Medical Corps of the Regular Army.

He is survived by his wife, the former Jessie Spencer, whom he married in 1914.

He was promoted through the grades to brigadier general, in 1943, and to major general in 1946 when he assumed command of the Army Medical Center in Washington, succeeding Maj. Gen. Shelley U. Marietta, USA-Ret. Prior to that

Merchant Marine

Under Secretary of the Navy W. John Kenney headed a group of Naval officials who participated prominently in the annual meeting of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers in New York City last week.

Vice Adm. Edward L. Cochrane, USN-Ret., told delegates that the Navy is making "marked progress" in the submarine field and in construction of new destroyers.

Hailed as one of the outstanding technical papers presented at the meeting was a treatise on salvage work by Rear Adm. William A. Sullivan, USN-Ret.

Other participants included Comdr. Lewis A. Rupp of the Bureau of Ships; Harold F. Robinson, chief naval architect of the Bethlehem Steel Company's shipbuilding division; John F. Roeske, assistant naval architect, Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, and A. S. Thaeler, assistant marine engineer, Pittsburgh Steamship Company.

The Navy has taken steps to stop induction of merchant marine officers who are Naval Reservists. Mr. John Noble, assistant to Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, has told Capt. William C. Ash, vice president of the National Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots of America, that the Navy will not accept reservists for 21 months of active service even after they have taken their pre-induction physical examinations for the draft.

he served in the Panama Canal Zone, the Philippine Islands, and at many hospitals and posts within the United States.

He was distinguished both for outstanding ability in the medical profession and for his accomplishments as an able administrator.

He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for services to his country during World War I.

General Beach's affiliations include: Fellow, American College of Physicians; diplomate, American Board of Internal Medicine; member, Association of Military Surgeons; honorary member, Texas Internists Society; second vice president, United Services Automobile Association, and member of the Episcopal Church.

The body was placed in the chapel of the Army Medical Center for public viewing 19 Nov. from 5 to 8 o'clock and this morning, Saturday, 20 Nov., from 9 to 10 a.m.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, 20 Nov., in the chapel, with Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Luther Miller officiating. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery about noon. Honorary pallbearers will include: General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, USA-Ret., Lt. Gen. Leonard G. Gerow, USA, Lt. Gen. Wade H. Haislip, USA, Lt. Gen. Leroy Lutes, USA, Maj. Gen. Albert W. Kenner, MC, USA, Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, The Adjutant General of the Army; Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, USA; Maj. Gen. Everett S. Hughes, Chief of Ordnance; Maj. Gen. Shelley U. Marietta, MC, USA-Ret.; Col. John Callan O'Laughlin, and Col. William L. Keller.

Maj. Gen. John Piper Smith

Maj. Gen. John Piper Smith, USA, Ret., was buried with full military honors in Arlington National Cemetery on 9 Nov. after funeral rites at 10:30 A.M. in Fort Myer Chapel.

General Smith died suddenly at his home at Wardman Park Hotel on 4 Nov. He is survived by his wife Cornelia Parmelee Smith and five brothers.

Close friends honoring him as pallbearers were: Lt. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, Lt. Gen. Charles Herron, Col. Earl Biscoe, The Hon.

Robert Woods Bliss, Vice Admiral Tarrant, Col. Robert Gilpin Ervin, AC; Maj. Gen. William Bryden, Col. Roger Parrott, and Brig. Gen. W. R. Nichols.

General Smith had a distinguished service in the Army. He was a graduate of the CAC School—the Command and General Staff School—the Army War College and the Naval War College, Class of '32.

He was a veteran of both World Wars and held the Victory Medal with four stars.

He was a member of the General Staff Corps—commanded the 4th Corps Area, 1940-42; was Chief of Administrative Service of the War Department; a member of both the Canadian and Mexican Defense Boards, and in January 1943 was assigned as Senior Army Member of the Planning Group of O.S.S. as representative of the Chief of Staff George C. Marshall.

General Smith had been awarded the Purple Heart and the Distinguished Service Medal with Cluster.

A tribute has been given by the Hon. Robert Woods Bliss, who was the State Department representative on the Planning Group of O.S.S.:

"I had the greatest admiration for General Smith as a soldier of the highest order—who rendered outstanding service to his country—and was a man of unusually fine mind. And so I felt privileged to have been associated with him. But over and above that, I had an affection for him as a human being of fine character—in whose friendship I took especial pleasure."

Rear Adm. Edward Rhodes Stitt

Funeral services with full military honors were held at the Ft. Myer Chapel, Arlington, Va., on 16 Nov., for Rear Adm. Edward Rhodes Stitt, 81, former Surgeon General of the Navy, who died at the U. S. Naval Hospital, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., on 13 Nov.

Rear Adm. William N. Thomas, Chief of Navy Chaplains, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Robert E. Sherrill of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church. Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery.

Pallbearers were: Rear Adms. C. A. Swanson, H. L. Pugh, M. D. Willcuts, and Joel T. Boone; Vice Adm. Ross T. McIntire, and Dr. W. A. Bloedorn, dean of the George Washington Medical School.

In addition to his widow, Admiral Stitt is survived by a son, Comdr. Edward W. Stitt, USNR, of Trenton, N. J.; two daughters, Mrs. Warren Stephenson of Washington and Mrs. Herman Hudgins of Norfolk, Va.; and six grandchildren.

Admiral Stitt was born on 22 July 1867. Accepted in the Medical Corps of the Navy in 1889, he was commissioned an assistant surgeon in March, and retired from active duty in 1931 after 42 years' service, during which period he became an internationally known authority on tropical medicine and clinical laboratory procedures.

Col. Millard F. W. Oliver

Military rites honoring Col. Millard F. W. Oliver, USA-Ret., were held 4 Nov. in the T. A. Dorney Chapel, Monterey, Calif., with Chaplain Eric Eastman of Ft. Ord and Chaplain John R. Wright, USA-Ret., officiating. Burial took place in the Monterey Presidio Cemetery.

Col. Oliver died 1 Nov. at the Fort Ord Station Hospital following an extended illness. He was a native of Iowa and had made his home in Pacific Grove, Calif., for the past nine years.

A member of the Regular Army for 29 years, Colonel Oliver served as post finance officer at Fort Ord from 1942 until his retirement on 31 May 1946. His military career began in 1917 with his entrance into service during World War I, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1918, advancing to the rank of colonel in August, 1942.

Following duty at France Field, Canal Zone, Colonel Oliver served as post finance officer at the Monterey Presidio for a number of years before his assignment to Fort Ord. As a supplement to his noteworthy military career, Colonel Oliver was known as an accomplished pianist.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Helen D. Oliver of Pacific Grove, Calif., and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph I. Barker of North Hollywood, Calif.

1st Lt. Patrick K. McCaskey

Funeral services for 1st Lt. Patrick K. McCaskey, who was killed in action in 1944, were held in Edgewood, R. I., 13 Nov. 1948, with burial in the post cemetery at Fort Adams, R. I., where military honors were rendered.

Lt. McCaskey, son of Lt. Col. John P. McCaskey, CAC-Ret., and Mrs. Florence (Hoover) McCaskey, of Cranston, R. I., was buried beside his brother, John P. McCaskey, jr., who died at Fort Adams while on duty with the Citizens Military Training Corps in 1932, while his father was commanding officer of the 10th Coast Artillery, then stationed at the fort.

Attending the funeral of Lt. McCaskey, who was killed in action while with the 351st Infantry in the Po Valley Campaign, were his widow, the former Miss Mary Greer, daughter of Brig. Gen. Frank U. Greer, USA-Ret., and Lt. Col. and Mrs. McCaskey.

Col. F. V. FitzGerald Honored

General Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, this week presented an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit to Col. Francis V. FitzGerald, USA-Ret., for "exceptionally meritorious service" as Publicity and Psychological Warfare Officer, Hdqrs, Twelfth Army Group, from August 1944 to May 1945.

Colonel FitzGerald, now a member of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL editorial staff, was retired in February 1945, but immediately returned to active duty. Before his second retirement on 31 July 1948, he was Chief, Publications Section, Public Information Division, Department of the Army.

The complete citation for the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit follows:

"Colonel FitzGerald performed exceptionally meritorious service as Publicity and Psychological Warfare Officer, Headquarters, Twelfth Army Group, from August 1944 to May 1945. He consistently maintained amicable relations with the Press and was instrumental in maintaining the support of public opinion for the operations of this command. Through his initiative and sound judgment, the conduct of psychological warfare by this command created effective pressure upon the enemy, overcoming fanaticism and the will for further resistance. His perseverance, superior professional skill and outstanding leadership reflect great credit upon himself and upon the military service."

New Naval Reserve Units

Specialists to direct the use of Navy automotive equipment in a national emergency, will be trained in a Volunteer Automotive Transportation Naval Reserve to be activated 1 Jan. 1949.

Units will be formed wherever a sufficient concentration of automotive specialists exists. They will hold ten monthly meetings and receive two weeks active training duty each year.

Men with Navy experience in automotive work who are interested in the Volunteer Automotive Transportation Naval Reserve should apply for details at the Office of Naval Officer Procurement nearest their home.

GCA Units for Navy

A Navy contract for twelve ground control approach units, radar system used to guide planes through fog or heavy weather to the airport runway, has been awarded to the Radio Division of the Bendix Aviation Corporation.

For a three-year period ending 1 Oct. this year, 151,700 successful landings had been made by Navy Ground Controlled Approach units throughout the world. Of this total, 6,576 were actual instrument landings where the plane was brought in under bad weather conditions.

The twelve new GCA units will be used as normal replacement for Navy units which have been in use for a number of years in the United States and abroad. The units will cost $2,900,000.

Notify the Army and Navy Journal promptly of any change of address.
